Buddhism and Its Christian Critics Paul Carus,1897 Buddhism and Its Christian Critics Dr. Paul Carus,2015-06-04
Excerpt from Buddhism and Its Christian Critics Comparison is the best method of acquiring comprehension and comprehension involves both the discrimination of contrasts and the recognition of similarities Differences are upon the whole at once apparent while similarities are hidden but the import of differences can at the same time not be appreciated until the similarities are seen Thus the discovery that the course of the moon and the fall of a stone are both phenomena of gravitation becomes significant only when the difference of both phenomena can be traced to a difference of conditions For this reason every religious man should study other religions in order to understand his own religion and he must try to trace conscientiously and lovingly the similarities in the various faiths in order to acquire the key that will unlock to him the law of the religious evolution of mankind The present book purports to be a contribution to comparative religion and it is one sided because it is addressed mainly to Christians viz to those Christians who are anxious to acquire an insight into the significance of Buddhist thought as it is at its best About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works The Presbyterian and Reformed Review Benjamin Breckinridge Warfield,1901 Includes section Reviews of recent theological literature Buddhism and Its Christian Critics Paul Carus,1972 Buddhism and Its Christian Critics (Classic Reprint) Paul Carus,2017-10-11 Excerpt from Buddhism and Its Christian Critics Comparison is the best method of acquiring comprehension and comprehension involves both the discrimination of contrasts and the recognition of Similarities Differences are upon the Whole at once apparent While similarities are hidden but the import of differences can at the same time not be appreciated until the similarities are seen Thus the discovery that the course of the moon and the fall of a stone are both phenomena of gravitation becomes significant only when the difference of both phenomena can be traced to a difference of conditions About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Journal of the Buddhist Text and Anthropological Society ,1897 Buddhism and Its Christian
