Hygrothermal Risk on Building Heritage João M.P.Q. Delgado, Ana Sofia Guimarães, Vasco Peixoto de Freitas, 2015-05-05 This book presents a critical review of a criterion of risk created to assess the flood risk to heritage buildings and evaluates this criterion by applying it to the sample Portuguese heritage buildings In a first approach the total number of potential parameters is effectively reduced and the selected criteria are divided into two different groups the monument s location in relation to a waterway and the behaviour of its construction material in contact with water Above all the book discusses the importance of architectural heritage and argues for the need to safeguard it from extreme climatic phenomena such as floods As such the book vividly reminds the scientific community that the intensification of the global warming and climate change will worsen throughout the 21st century and that it is therefore necessary to adopt preventive measures to minimize mitigate and control these adverse effects if we hope to avoid catastrophic consequences At the same time the book takes into account a broad range of scientific and engineering disciplines such as civil engineering and architecture offering a synthesis of the current state of knowledge to benefit and guide experts and practitioners in related fields
