Aboriginal Family:

Aboriginal Family and the State Sally Babidge, 2010 Aboriginal Family and the State examines the contemporary relations and history of Indigenous families in Australia specifically referencing issues of government control and recent official recognition of Aboriginal traditional owners Drawing on detailed empirical research it develops a discussion of the anthropological issues of kinship and relatedness within colonial and postcolonial contexts This volume explores the conditions affecting the formation of family among indigenous people in rural northern Australia as well as the contingencies of family in the legal and political context of contemporary indigenous claims to land With a rich discussion of the production practice and inscription of social relations this volume examines everyday expressions of family and events such as meetings and funerals demonstrating that kinship is formed and reformed through a complicated social practice of competing demands on identity

The Family in Law Archana Parashar, Francesca Dominello, 2017-04-20 This book challenges conventional boundaries of family law providing a solid foundation and edge to students understanding of the topic

Aboriginal Women and Family Violence, 2008 This report is a condensed version of a research report prepared by the Ipsos Reid research firm for Indian and Northern Affairs Canada on the attitudes and opinions of Aboriginal women and the professionals who work with them on intimate partner violence against women It includes a discussion of the causes and consequences of male violence against women in Aboriginal communities and of sources of support resource gaps and recommendations The report is intended primarily for organizations providing assistance to Aboriginal women who have experienced violence

Working with Families Experiencing Vulnerability Susan Heward-Belle, Menka Tsantefski, 2023-05-09 Vulnerability is not a fixed state people and families can move in and out of experiencing vulnerability throughout their lives All families are at risk of experiencing vulnerability at some point which means that social workers and other professionals must be equipped with the skills to effectively provide them with support Working with Families Experiencing Vulnerability A Partnership Approach provides a comprehensive evidence based guide to family centred practice for the social work human services health and education professions This edition has been comprehensively revised and features new chapters on working with families affected by natural disasters families experiencing poverty M ori families LGBTQIA families and families where a parent has an intellectual disability Emphasis is placed on promoting a rights based relational approach to working with children and young people who are most at risk of experiencing vulnerability Each chapter includes case studies reflective questions and activities
