Build Brother Build Leon H. Sullivan, 1969 BUILD BROTHER BUILD LCON.H.SULLIVAN, 1978-05-01 Build Brother Build Leon Howard Sullivan, 1971 Up South Matthew J. Countryman, 2026-02-10 A look at the efforts of two generations of Black Philadelphians to turn the City of Brotherly Love into a place of promise and opportunity for all reissued with a new preface that continues the story of civil rights activism in Philadelphia up to the Black Lives Matter movement Although Philadelphia rarely appears in histories of the modern civil rights struggle the city was home to a vibrant and groundbreaking movement for racial justice in the years between World War II and the 1970s During the 1940s and 1950s liberal civil rights groups successfully campaigned for Philadelphia's new City Charter to be the first in the nation to include a ban on racial discrimination in municipal employment services and contracts Within a decade however Black activists in the city were leading consumer boycotts and street protests against the city's liberal establishment for failing to overcome entrenched structures of racial inequality in labor markets residential neighborhoods and public schools These protests set the stage both for some of the earliest experiments in affirmative action and for the emergence of the Black Power movement in Philadelphia Challenging the view that it was the inflammatory rhetoric of Black Power and the rising demands of Black activists that derailed the civil rights movement Up South documents the efforts of Black Power activists in Philadelphia to construct a vital and effective social movement On issues ranging from public education and urban renewal to police brutality and welfare Philadelphia's Black Power movement remade the city's political landscape and fundamentally altered the composition of Black leadership in the city to include a new cohort of neighborhood based working class and female Black community activists By broadening the chronological and geographic parameters of the civil rights movement Up South explores the origins of civil rights liberalism the failure of the liberal program of antidiscrimination legislation and interracial coalition building to deliver on its promise of racial equality and the subsequent rise of the Black Power movement This timely reissue features a new preface that continues the story of civil rights activism in Philadelphia up to the Black Lives Matter movement and on the occasion of the 250th anniversary of the nation's founding discusses how the past continues to be relevant to the present work in civil rights history Body-build and Its Inheritance Charles Benedict Davenport, 1923 The Problem of Jobs Guian A. McKee, 2010-06-15 Contesting claims that postwar American liberalism retreated from fights against unemployment and economic inequality The Problem of Jobs reveals that such efforts did not collapse after the New Deal but instead began to flourish at the local rather than the national level With a focus on Philadelphia this volume illuminates the central role of these local political and policy struggles in shaping the fortunes of city and citizen alike In the process it tells the remarkable story of how Philadelphia's policymakers and community activists energetically worked to challenge deindustrialization through an innovative series of job retention initiatives training programs inner city business development projects and early affirmative action programs Without ignoring the failure of

Philadelphians to combat institutionalized racism Guian McKee s account of their surprising success draws a portrait of American liberalism that evinces a potency not usually associated with the postwar era Ultimately interpreting economic decline as an arena for intervention rather than a historical inevitability The Problem of Jobs serves as a timely reminder of policy s potential to combat injustice Building ,1907 Building Age and the Builders' Journal ,1923 *Catalog of Copyright Entries.
