Drew,1996 In Aptitude Revisited David Drew argues that the people least encouraged to study mathematics and science in our society are those who have the least power especially students from poverty minority students and young women Policy makers teachers and even parents often steer certain students away from math and science for completely erroneous reasons The result Drew contends is not simply an inadequately trained work force this educational discrepancy is widening the gap between the haves and the have nots in our society Drew systematically reviews studies programs and data to identify the causes of our educational problems and the solutions that will work He challenges the conventional view that science and math are too boring or too hard for many students to argue that virtually all students are capable of mastering these subjects Drew s carefully researched recommendations speak directly to policy makers concerned with America s international competitiveness and to parents and students facing a tough economy and tight labor market
