Rendering Techniques 2001 S.J. Gortler, K. Myzskowski, 2001-07-31 This book contains the proceedings of the 11th Eurographics Workshop on Rendering which took place from the 25 to the 27th of June 2001 in London United Kingdom Over the past 11 years the workshop has become the premier forum dedicated to research in rendering Much of the work in rendering now appearing in other conferences and journals builds on ideas originally presented at the workshop This year we received a total of 74 submissions Each paper was carefully reviewed by two of the 28 international programme committee members as well as external reviewers selected by the co chairs from a pool of 125 individuals In this review process all submissions and reviews were handled electronically with the exception of videos submitted with a few of the papers The overall quality of the submissions was exceptionally high Space and time constraints forced the committee to make some difficult decisions In the end 29 papers were accepted and they appear here Almost all papers are accompanied color images which appear at the end of the book The papers treat the following varied topics methods for local and global illumination techniques for acquisition and modeling from images image based rendering new image representations hardware assisted methods shadow algorithms visibility perception texturing and filtering Each year in addition to the reviewed contributions the workshop includes invited presentations from internationally recognized experts

Artificial Life V Christopher G. Langton, Katsunori Shimohara, 1997 In addition to presenting the latest work in the field Artificial Life V includes a retrospective and prospective look at both artificial and natural life with the aim of refining the methods and approaches discovered so far into viable practical tools for the pursuit of science and engineering goals May 16-18 1996 Nara Japan Despite all the successes in computer engineering adaptive computation bottom up AI and robotics Artificial Life must not become simply a one way bridge borrowing biological principles to enhance our engineering efforts in the construction of life as it could be We must ensure that we give back to biology in kind by developing tools and methods that will be of real value in the effort to understand life as it is Artificial Life V marks a decade since Christopher Langton organized the first workshop on artificial life a decade characterized by the exploration of new possibilities and techniques as researchers have sought to understand through synthetic experiments the organizing principles underlying the dynamics usually the nonlinear dynamics of living systems In addition to presenting the latest work in the field Artificial Life V includes a retrospective and prospective look at both artificial and natural life with the aim of refining the methods and approaches discovered so far into viable practical tools for the pursuit of science and engineering goals

 Committee PITAC recently advised the US Senate of the strategic importance of investing in IT for the 21st century particularlyin the areas of software human computer interaction scalable information infrastructure high end computing and socioeconomic issues 1 Research frontiers ofhuman computer interaction include the desire that interac tion be more centered around human needs and capabilities and that the human environment be considered in virtual environments and in other contextual infor mation processing activities The overall goal is to make users more effective in their information or communication tasks by reducing learning times speeding performance lowering error rates facilitating retention and increasing subjective satisfaction Improved designs can dramatically increase effectiveness for users who range from novices to experts and who have diverse cultures with varying educational backgrounds Their lives could be made more satisfying topics dealt with are the use of image maps to capture light throughout space complexity volumetric stochastic descriptions innovative approaches to sampling and approximation and system architecture The Rendering Workshop proceedings are an
