A Likeness:

Drawing a Likeness Douglas R. Graves, 1979 Everyone who paints or draws portraits worries most about one thing getting an accurate likeness But getting a likeness doesn't take genius and isn't based on a bag of tricks It's really a matter of learning to use a logical procedure based on careful observation of the subject and then lots of practice Drawing a Likeness is divided into three parts In the first part you learn how to analyze a head how to recognize the basic shapes and their variations and place the features within the larger form of the head Drawings of many different subjects serve as examples In the second part the actual drawing procedure is analyzed in minute detail as three different shaped heads oval rectangular and round are drawn Each of these three demonstrations contains a photograph of the subject and develops the portrait in great detail 45 actual steps right down to the finished drawing In the third part of the book you learn how to use different combinations of drawing materials to create a wide range of effects charcoal Conte and carbon pencils on both gray and white charcoal paper graphite pencils on illustration board soft and hard charcoal sticks and pencils on smooth board charcoal and carbon pencil worked over acrylic gessoed chipboard There are six demonstrations in this section showing how to draw men and women of different ages Each demonstration has ten steps one per page and includes a photograph of the subject Drawing a Likeness is a basic practical book for anyone who has ever tried to draw or paint a portrait students amateurs professionals and teachers

Summa Theologiae, Prima Pars: Volume 3, Human Beings and God's Governance of Creation, QQ 75-119 Thomas Aquinas, Thomas de Vio Cajetan, 2023-06-23 This book is an introduction to three questions on love according to St Thomas Aquinas Summa Theologiae I II qq 26 28 These three questions reflect on the nature of love q 26 the causes of love q 27 and the effects of love q 28 It is thus an introduction to the entire phenomenon of love both as a bodily passion and an act of the will The purpose is to present the Thomistic and broadly scholastic account of human and divine love from a philosophical and theological perspective It aims to be a theological and philosophical study of the topic useful both for a graduate professional audience as part of an undergraduate or graduate course and perhaps for the educated reader The thesis of the book is that contrary to contemporary conceptions not all loves are created equal Some loves perfect us and some loves corrupt us The worth of a love depends on its object and end St Thomas thus presents an objective and teleological account of human and divine love that is of philosophical and theological interest The method is broadly exegetical presenting a careful reading of the text and supplying the philosophical and theological background which the text of Aquinas assumes The scope of the work is limited to three questions ST I II qq 26 28 References to interpretative disputes of Aquinas and references to further resources in the secondary literature will be mostly limited to the footnotes making the body of the text accessible to more readers Selected Papers Harold Fredrik Cherniss,1977 No detailed description available for Selected Papers English Synonymes Explained George Crabb,1882
