Autumnization Its Genetic Interpretati:

Autumnization and Its Genetic Interpretation Sándor Rajki, 1967 The autumnization genetic research work of the author started in 1955 with the experimental investigation of the problem of whether winter wheat variations really develop in pure lines of spring wheats under the influence of the environment As a result of his experiments he gives a definite answer to this much debated question stating that adequate genetic variation takes place in the genetically pure spring wheat under environmental influences Further he formulates the metabolic biochemical concept of heredity and attempts to outline a hypothetical model and biochemical mechanism of autumnization
