Race, Gender, and the Labor Market Robert L. Kaufman, 2010 Women and minorities have entered higher paying occupations but their overall earnings still lag behind those of white men Why Looking nationwide at workers across all employment levels and occupations the author examines the unexpected ways that prejudice and workplace discrimination continue to plague the labor market He probes the mechanisms by which race and sex groups are sorted into appropriate jobs showing how the resulting segregation undercuts earnings He also uses an innovative integration of race sex queuing and segmented market theories to show how economic and social contexts shape these processes His analysis reveals how race sex stereotyping and devaluation interact to create earnings disparities shedding new light on a vicious cycle that continues to leave women and minorities behind

CEPAL Review, 2016

Wives of Steel Karen Olson, 2005 Wives of Steel is based on more than eighty formal interviews conducted over a fifteen year period with women and some men both white and black all of whom were part of Sparrows Point as workers spouses or longtime residents of the local communities Through the stories they tell we see how a male dominated industry has influenced personal family and social experiences over several generations We also see the distinct differences and surprising similarities among the lives of black and white women which often reflect the complicated relationships among black and white steelworkers in the plant points toward its future Significantly rewritten reorganized and updated the fourth edition features seventeen new readings and new sections on feminism in China India South Korea and Japan In addition the bulleted lists that introduce each type of feminism now include a critique as well as that particular feminism s theories on the sources of gender inequality its politics and its contributions An accessible engaging classic written by one of sociology s first feminists Gender Inequality Feminist Theories and Politics Fourth Edition is an ideal undergraduate and graduate text for courses in introductory feminism feminist theory and women s studies UC Irvine Law Review ,2013 Science & Public Policy ,2007 Poverty in the United States [2 Volumes] Gwendolyn Mink,Alice M. O'Connor,2004-11-22 The first interdisciplinary reference to cover the socioeconomic and political history the movements and the changing face of poverty in the United States Poverty in the United States An Encyclopedia of History Politics and Policy follows the history of poverty in the United States with an emphasis on the 20th century and examines the evolvement of public policy and the impact of critical movements in social welfare such as the New Deal the War on Poverty and more recently the end of welfare as we know it Encompassing the contributions of hundreds of experts including historians sociologists and political scientists this resource provides a much broader level of information than previous highly selective works With approximately 300 alphabetically organized topics it covers topics and issues ranging from affirmative action to the Bracero Program the Great Depression and living wage campaigns to domestic abuse and unemployment Other entries describe and analyze the definitions and explanations of poverty the relationship of the welfare state to poverty and the political responses by the poor middle class professionals and the policy elite 300 A Z entries on topics related to poverty and social welfare including the political discovery of poverty antipoverty policies and debates about legislation Includes five introductory chronological essays covering U S poverty since the colonial era giving a historical foundation to the entries in the book Contributions from over 200 distinguished scholars and experts Numerous illustrations and primary source documents dispersed throughout the work Book Review Digest ,2003 Gender, Poverty, Empowerment and the Promise of Microcredit in India and the United States Sujata Shetty,2002 This dissertation is a comparative study of the effects of microcredit on women participants in three economic development programs two in India and one in the United States It uses a gender and development perspective to examine if credit and the process by which credit is delivered address market issues namely poverty labor market segmentation and market structures that discriminate against women It also seeks to examine the intra household impacts of credit The study reveals that in India microcredit for women has become part of the mainstream development effort while in the U S such programs function at the margins of the economy and public policy With respect to empowerment the study reveals that that it occurs at many levels and that there is great variation between and within cases The poverty alleviation impact in both contexts is small women have been able to negotiate some change at the household level but have not been able to change the gendered division of labor In general independent access to credit has positive impacts at the individual level but impacts at the community or state level are functions of the nature of the credit program rather than of credit provision alone The study reveals that contrary to the current trend towards a narrow focus on poverty alleviation alone if the aim is to empower the women it serves a broad based form of intervention is essential for the credit to succeed in its mission Gender Relations in Canada Janet Siltanen, Andrea Doucet, 2008 This text focuses on how gender differences and inequalities play out in the social lives of men and women throughout the life course Theory is linked with practice through a series of case studies that highlight current research from Canada the United States Britain and Australia
