Textbooks have been standard schoolroom fixtures for as long as most living citizens of this country can remember. Many turn of the century students were introduced to reading through the moralistic McGuffey Readers and struggled through the rather drab and colorless pages of volumes on history, geography, and civics. In contrast, today's textbooks contain not only narrative content accompanied by colorful photographs and graphics but also section and chapter exercises that are extended through the use of worksheets and other materials. Moreover, the textbook and its related student materials are packaged together with teacher's editions and tests in grade level sets that amount to content area programs rather than mere texts.

Focusing on ability disability and reading/writing from an interactive perspective, this text emphasizes the importance of determining and establishing the appropriate learning environment for the individual learner. Extensive in-depth treatment of current research and best practices make this text a must-have addition to any current or future teacher's library. Section I, Chs 1-3 provides the readers with a strong comprehensive knowledge of reading/writing research and assessment practices from which readers can move forward to the second and third sections of the text, Chs 4-10, which contain detailed discussions and examples of assessment practices. Traditional assessments of students are fully explored and two chapters are devoted to assessing context factors like instructional methods and materials and tasks. Both classroom-based and standardized assessments are described. Section IV stands alone as an important chapter linking assessment to instruction by means of diagnostic instruction. Section V, Ch 12-15 is devoted to instructional practices designed to improve reading and writing instruction for struggling students. Chapters on word recognition, vocabulary, comprehension, composition, and high utility strategies address the major components of literacy development. In the final section, Ch 16, issues related to professional standards and written reports are addressed.

New to this edition: The latest research on teacher instruction for technologically advanced students. More emphasis on student assessment versus clinical diagnoses. The importance of assessing and guiding reading through language literacy development is stressed.
