

Grammaire de texte

La grammaire n'est devenue « textuelle » et discursive que depuis peu de temps -elle a été longtemps une grammaire "phrastique" et encore, dans une perspective exclusivement syntaxique.

Or la lecture "et l'écriture" d'un texte ne se fonde non seulement sur des constituant phrastiques mais aussi des composants textuels de dimension plus grandes que celle de la phrase.

Comment aborder un texte pour reconstituer son organisation explicite et découvrir son implicite afin d'accéder au sens de ce texte ?

A travers les indices paratextuels, les repérages énonciatifs, la progression thématique, la cohésion et la cohérence, les anaphores et les cataphores.

Les indices paratextuels

Avant de lire un texte, on en saisit d'abord l'aspect sous lequel il se présente.

Cet aspect est formé d'un ensemble d'éléments appelés indices paratextuels ou "périphériques" qui donnent déjà certain nombre d'information au lecteur avant même qu'il ne pénètre dans le texte c.à.d qu'il ne commence à lire certains indices sont extérieurs au texte c'est le paratexte.

D'autres sont intérieurs du texte c'est l'image du texte.

Le paratexte :

1.Le titre : conçu pour attirer le lecteur, le titre annonce le contenu du texte.

Il peut être banal ou recherché, il peut annoncer directement le thème de l'ouvrage ou le suggérer.

Il peut avoir une valeur figurative quand il donne une idée explicite du contenu, ou symbolique quand il faut le traduire pour saisir le rapport qu'il entretient avec ce contenu.

Plus le titre est long, plus est explicite.

Dans les manuels scolaires, les titres sont choisis de manière à résumer le contenu des textes.

2.Le chapeau : c'est un petit paragraphe qui suit le titre, il permet de situer le texte, quand il est extrait d'une œuvre, pour au lecteur de disposer des informations nécessaires pour comprendre le texte.

Généralement, le chapeau résume ce qui précède le texte pour que le lecteur puisse suivre les événements relatés dans le texte.

Il a pour but d'encourager la lecture.
