Archaeology By Design:

Archaeology by Design Stephen L. Black, Kevin Jolly, 2003-03-19 Archaeology doesn't just happen. With large numbers of people involved, the complex logistics of fieldwork, funding needed for projects of any size, and a bewildering set of legal regulations and ethical norms to follow, a well-run archaeological project requires careful and detailed planning. In this reader-friendly guide, Black and Jolly give novice researchers invaluable practical advice on the process of designing successful field projects. Encompassing both directed academic and directed CRM projects, they outline the elements needed in your professional toolkit, show step-by-step how an archaeological project proceeds, focus on developing appropriate research questions and theoretical models, and address implementation issues from NAGPRA regulations down to estimating the number of shovels to toss into the pickup. Sidebars explain important topics like the Section 106 process, the importance of ethnology and geology to archaeologists, OSHA requirements, and how to assess significance. Archaeology by Design is an ideal starting point for giving students and novices the big picture of a contemporary archaeological project.

Archaeologist's Toolkit: Archaeology by design, 2003 Stylistic Variation in Prehistoric Ceramics Stephen Plog, 1980-11-28 Plog argues that there are many more factors that cause design or stylistic variations on prehistoric artifacts than have been previously acknowledged. Using data primarily from the American Southwest, he shows why the methods of design analysis that have been used are often inappropriate and presents a new framework of explanation. Making Archaeology Happen Martin Oswald Hugh Carver, 2011-09-30 Archaeology is for people is the theme of this book. Split between the academic and commercial sectors, archaeological investigation is also deeply embedded in the needs of local communities, making it simultaneously an art science and social science. Such a multi-disciplinary discipline needs special methods and creative freedom, not repetitive responses. Carver argues that commercial procedures and academic theory are both suffocating creativity in fieldwork. He'd like to see us bring much more diversity and technical ingenuity to every opportunity and maintains this is more a matter of getting ourselves free of dogma than needing more time and money. This has many implications for the way archaeology is designed and procured, moving archaeologists up the professional ladder from builder to architect with contracts based on quality of design, not the price. Making Archaeology Happen Martin Oswald Hugh Carver, 2016-06-16 Who wants archaeology? Who should pay for it? Who should do it? And how? Making Archaeology Happen is an attempt to answer these questions, campaigning for a more liberated, imaginative, and productive field profession. Origin of Architectural Design Lee Herbert McCoy, 1912 Designing Experimental Research in Archaeology Jeffrey R. Ferguson, 2010-05-15 Designing Experimental Research in Archaeology is a guide for the design of archaeological experiments for both students and scholars. Experimental archaeology provides a unique opportunity to corroborate conclusions with multiple trials of repeatable experiments and can provide data otherwise unavailable to archaeologists without damaging sites, remains, or artifacts. Each chapter addresses a particular classification of material.

Southern Appalachians Ramie A. Gougeon, Maureen Meyers,2026-10-25 In the last four decades southeastern archaeology has increasingly developed a processual method of looking at archaeological data through varying levels of scale By adjusting the scale archaeologists can further define societal interactions and exchanges which is particularly useful to those researching the Mississippian period as the rise and fall of chiefdoms was both internally complex and externally influenced by broader regional factors This use of the most current research methods has enabled a more comprehensive understanding of prehistoric and historic sociopolitical entities In Archaeological Perspectives of the Southern Appalachians Ramie A Gougeon and Maureen S Meyers have brought together a dozen archaeologists to delineate multiscale approaches to Native American sites throughout southern Appalachia The essays range in topic from ceramic assemblages in northern Georgia to public architecture in North Carolina to the frontiers of southern Appalachia in Virginia Throughout the volume the contributors discuss varying scales of analysis in their own research to flesh out the importance of maintaining different perspectives when evaluating archaeological evidence Additionally the volume makes particular reference to the work of David Hally whose influence on not only the editors and contributors but on southeastern archaeology as a whole cannot be overstated While Hally was neither a pioneer nor vocal champion of scale variation his impeccable research culminating with the publication of his magnum opus King The Social Archaeology of a Late Mississippian Town in Northwestern Georgia paved the way for younger scholars to truly develop research methods for holistic social archaeology American Journal
