Architecture And Participation:

Architecture and Participation Peter Blundell Jones, Doina Petrescu, Jeremy Till, 2013-07-04 Bringing together leading international practitioners and theorists in the field ranging from the 1960s pioneers of participation to some of the major contemporary figures in the field Architecture and Participation opens up the social and political aspects of our built environment and the way that the eventual users may shape it Divided into three sections looking at the politics histories and practices of participation the book gives both a broad theoretical background and more direct examples of participation in practice Respectively the book explores participation s broader context outlining key themes and including work from some seminal European figures and shows examples of how leading practitioners have put their ideas into action Illustrated throughout the authors present to students practitioners and policy makers an exploration of how a participative approach may lead to new spatial conditions as well as to new types of architectural practices and investigates the way that the user has been included in the design process Architecture, Participation and Society Leslie Forsyth, 2010 How can architects best increase their engagement with building users and wider society to provide better architecture Since the mid 1990s government policy has promoted the idea of greater social participation in the production and management of the built environment but there has been limited direction to the practising architect Reviewing international cases and past experiences to analyze what lessons have been learnt this book argues for participation within other related disciplines and makes a set of recommendations for architectural practices and other key actors An Architecture of Participation Giancarlo De Carlo, 1972 The Architecture of Participation Giancarlo De Carlo, 2026-05-12 Seminal texts by renowned Italian architect Giancarlo De Carlo on architecture education and anarchy Giancarlo De Carlo s academic and professional career combined two seemingly opposed terms in a single vocation architecture and anarchy But this was a vocation that avoided the utopian fantasies of the 1960s and 1970s and instead strove for rigor In the essays collected in this book De Carlo shows how the idea of participatory architecture can open the way to a realistic fully realizable utopia in theory but also in practice in his urban planning of the city center of Rimini and in his architectural plan for the village of Matteotti in Terni Architecture is too important to be left to architects De Carlo claims and one of the fundamental questions this collection poses is what is the role of the architect Included here are De Carlo s writings on the crisis of the university in the wake of student protests that anticipated not only the uprising of May 1968 but continue to speak to the crisis in the educational system today His analysis of the overturned pyramid structure of the university still has resonance today where everything is supported by the very thin tip of the academic body that relies not on the tensions suggestions and demands that come from below but by the principle of authority a structure that emphasizes the institutionalization and professionalization of education and scholarship rather than on alternative processes of learning Also included are De Carlo s celebrated essays Why How to Construct School Buildings and Architecture s Public which address the potential of architecture to translate and realize the issues that arise from the act of protest

The Practice Turn in Architecture: Brussels after 1968 Isabelle Doucet, 2016-07-07 What makes a city What makes architecture And what is to be included in the discussions of architecture and the city Attempting to answer such ambitious questions this book starts from a city's specificity and complexity In response to recent debates in architectural theory around the agency and locus of critical action this book tests the potential of criticality through practice Rather than through conceptual and ideological categorisations it studies how architecture and criticality work within specific circumstances Brussels a complex city with a turbulent architectural and urban past forms a compelling case for examining the tensions between urban politics architectural imaginations society's needs and desires and the city's history and fabric Inspired by pragmatist relational philosophies this book tests the potential of criticality through practice It studies a series of critical actions and tools which occurred in Brussels architectural and urban culture after 1968 Weaved together Brussels architectural production emerges from a variety of actors including architects urban policy makers activists social workers and citizens but also architectural movements and ideologies urban renewal programs urban traumas plans and projects and mundane everyday practices and constructions This book contributes to the study of Brussels and offers a timely contribution to recent scholarship on the critical reappraisal of architectural debates from the 1960s through to the 1990s In addition by showing how pragmatist relational philosophies can be made relevant for architectural theory the book opens hopeful potentials for how architectural theory can better contribute to the formulation of a critical agenda for architecture

Architecture is Participation Susanne Hofmann, 2014 In our society there is an increasing demand for participation in shaping our built environment Without civic participation few major building projects can go ahead Furthermore the knowledge of the users with regard to utilization and how spaces are experienced is in fact an important tool for architects during the design process This volume presents examples of successful participation according to a method developed in the practice test in which the focus is on communication about and by means of atmospheres Realized pilot projects are supplemented by a wide range of participatory options presented as practical guidelines that can be used for one's own individual purposes Therefore the book invites direct application Architecture Is Participation is not only targeted towards architects and architectural agents but also towards communities administrations and especially the users of the city and architecture

Participation in Art and Architecture Martino Stierli, Mechtild Widrich, 2015-10-16 Does participatory art and architecture shape social reality or is it shaped by it Shifting the ground of this debate which tends to assume one or other direction of influence this innovative book explores the inherently dialectic relationship between society and the built environment At the same time it strives for a historically conscious discussion of a very contemporary issue Chapters rethink the top down model of participation and audience activation of high modernism from Alexander Dorner's immersive museum to Mies van der Rohe's rooms for play investigate participation in spaces under political pressure from exhibitions in bombed out buildings in besieged Sarajevo 1992-5 to the art and organizing of revolution in Egypt 2012-13 draw historical parallels between modes of participation and the exercise of power that are seldom compared with one another from sites of occupation in 1968 Mexico and 2011 Spain finally creating links between cartography and feminism and between tourism and internet surveillance With these juxtapositions of the aesthetic and the everyday and the built and the mediated new questions arise is space formed once and for all or is it the changeable product of changeable patterns of use Does the aesthetic always correspond to the political or might an aesthetically authoritarian space be conducive to social justice In exploring these questions this book looks at how participants themselves exert power rather than being victimised or liberated from it
