Environmentalism and Economic Justice Laura Pulido, 1996-02-01 Ecological causes are championed not only by lobbyists or hikers While mainstream environmentalism is usually characterized by well financed highly structured organizations operating on a national scale campaigns for environmental justice are often fought by poor or minority communities Environmentalism and Economic Justice is one of the first books devoted to Chicano environmental issues and is a study of U S environmentalism in transition as seen through the contributions of people of color It elucidates the various forces driving and shaping two important examples of environmental organizing the 1965-71 pesticide campaign of the United Farm Workers and a grazing conflict between a Hispano cooperative and mainstream environmentalists in northern New Mexico The UFW example is one of workers highly marginalized by racism whose struggle as much for identity as for a union contract resulted in boycotts of produce at the national level The case of the grazing cooperative Ganados del Valle which sought access to land set aside for elk hunting represents a subaltern group fighting the elitism of natural resource policy in an effort to pursue a pastoral lifestyle In both instances Pulido details the ways in which racism and economic subordination create subaltern communities and shows how these groups use available resources to mobilize and improve their social economic and environmental conditions Environmentalism and Economic Justice reveals that the environmental struggles of Chicano communities do not fit the mold of mainstream environmentalism as they combine economic identity and quality of life issues Examination of the forces that create and shape these grassroots movements clearly demonstrates that environmentalism needs to be sensitive to local issues economically empowering and respectful of ethnic and cultural diversity
