Crowds a Moving-Picture of Democracy, Vol. 1 of 5 Gerald Stanley Lee, 2015-06-24. Excerpt from Crowds a Moving Picture of Democracy Vol 1 of 5. The best picture I know of my religion is Ludgate Hill as one sees it going down the foot of Fleet Street. It would seem to many perhaps like a rather strange half-heathen altar, but it has in it the three things with which I worship most my Maker in this present world: the three things which it would be the breath of religion to me to offer to a God together: Cathedrals, Crowds, and Machines. With the railway bridge reaching over all the little still locomotives in the din, whispering across the street with the wide black crowd streaming up and streaming down, and the big far away otherworldly church above, I am strangely glad. It is like having a picture of one's whole world taken up deftly and done in miniature and hung up for one against the sky: the white steam which is the breath of modern life, the vast hurrying of our feet, and that Great Finger pointing toward heaven day and night for us all. I never tire of walking out a moment from my nook in Clifford's Inn and stealing a glimpse and coming back to my fireplace. I sit still a moment before going to work and look in the flames and think: The great roar outside the Court gathers it all up, that huge boundless tiny summed-up world out there flings it faintly against my quiet windows while I sit and think.
