Dictionary Dedications:

Historical Dictionaries in their Paratextual Context Roderick McConchie, Jukka Tyrkkö, 2018-09-24 Both dictionary and paratext research have emerged recently as widely recognised research areas of intrinsic interest This collection represents an attempt to place dictionaries within the paratextual context for the first time This volume covers paratextual concerns including dictionary production and use questions concerning compilers publishers patrons and subscribers and their cultural embedding generally This book raises questions such as who compiled dictionaries and what cultural linguistic and scientific notions drove this process What influence did the professional interests life experience and social connexions of the lexicographer have Who published dictionaries and why and what do the forematter backmatter and supplements tell us Lexicographers edited adapted and improved earlier works leaving copies with marginalia which illuminate working methods Individual copies offer a history of ownership through marginalia signatures dates places and library stamps Further questions concern how dictionaries were sold who patronised them subscribed to them and how they came to various libraries

McDermott, 2017-03-02 The eighteenth century is renowned for the publication of Samuel Johnson's A Dictionary of the English Language which reference sources still call the first English dictionary. This collection demonstrates the inaccuracy of that claim but its tenacity in the public mind testifies to how decisively Johnson formed our sense of what a dictionary is. The essays and articles in this volume examine the already flourishing tradition of English lexicography from which Johnson drew as represented by Kersey, Bailey, and Martin as well as the flourishing contemporary trade in encyclopedic, technical, pronunciation, and bilingual lexicons.
