The Law-Science Chasm Cedric Charles Gilson, 2012-11-01 THE LAW SCIENCE CHASM is a socio legal study that takes seriously the varying approaches to science that physicians and scientists use as compared to legal actors such as judges and lawyers Offering a way to mediate and translate their different perspectives and assumptions

Gilson uses sociological and philosophical methodologies to explain each discipline to the other. Gilson's book takes seriously the idea of the autopoietic closure of society's communicative subsystems and works out the consequences in particular for science and law. This analysis both lends support to the credibility of the approach adopted and sheds light on the problems and the direction in which potential solutions might lie. The book consequently makes an important contribution not only to the literature dealing with the relationship between science and law but also to the literature dealing with the application of autopoietic systems theory to tangible concerns. This book is therefore of clear significance to those continuing to wrestle with the challenges thrown up by science for law and policy even when the spotlight of public attention is directed elsewhere.

In the Active Voice (Routledge Revivals) Mary Douglas, 2013-02-01 First published in 1982 this collection of essays is a reproach to a form of the sociology of religion that treats people as the passive objects of impersonal social influences. In opposition to this the author seeks to assert an active voice style of thinking about the relations between individuals and their cultural environment whether in economics, history or literary criticism. This collection is assembled with the guiding principle that all the essays touch upon the borderland between economic values and personal judgements of quality. Several essays illustrate the theme from the place of economics in anthropology and the place of economic behaviour in sociological and cultural criticism. The essay on Cultural bias suggests a systematic method of analysis for investigating social influences on judgement and choice.
