Rosa,2023-11-06 This sharply argued book posits that urban revitalization making better city living spaces from those that have been neglected due to racist city planning and divestment is a code word for fraught state managed gentrification Vanessa A Rosa examines the revitalization of two Toronto public housing projects Regent Park and Lawrence Heights and uses this evidence to analyze the challenges of racial inequality and segregation at the heart of housing systems in many cities worldwide Instead of promoting safety and belonging Rosa argues that revitalization too often creates more intense exclusion But the story of these housing projects also reveals how residents pushed back on the ideals of revitalization touted by city officials and policymakers Rosa explores urban revitalization as a window to investigate broader questions about social regulation and the ways that racism classism and dynamics of inclusion exclusion are foundational to liberal democratic societies particularly as scholars continue to debate the politics of gentrification at the local level and the politics of integration and multiculturalism at the national level The Furniture Journal ,1918 Report of the Royal Commission on the Poor Laws and Relief of Distress Great Britain.
