Biology Of Temporary Waters:

The Biology of Temporary Waters D. Dudley Williams, 2006 The Biology of Temporary Waters brings together diverse global literature on pure and applied aspects of temporary waters and their biotas It examines their roles in both natural and human environments and seeks common evolutionary themes

The Ecology of Temporary Waters D. Dudley Williams, 2012-12-06 The primary role of this book is to introduce the reader to and hopefully stimulate interest in the ecology of temporary aquatic habitats The book assumes that the reader will have already some general knowledge of ecology but this is not essential Temporary waters exhibit amplitudes in both physical and chemical parameters which are much greater than those found in most waterbodies The organisms that live in these types of habitats have therefore to be very well adapted to these conditions if they are to survive Survival depends largely on exceptional physiological tolerance or effective immigration and emigration abilities Examples of such adaptations are given throughout the book and it is hoped that these will aid the reader in gaining an insight into the structure and function of plant and animal communities of these unusual habitats The final chapter suggests field and laboratory projects that should be useful to students in school and university studies

Perspectives in Southern Hemisphere Limnology Bryan R. Davies, R.D. Walmsley, 2012-12-06 This book contains the Proceedings of the Symposium on Perspectives in Southern Hemisphere Limnology which was held from 3-13 July 1984 in Wilderness South Africa It can be asked why this Symposium was necessary at a time when conferences symposia and other gatherings of learned people abound Limnologists in the Southern Hemisphere have for some time been pointing out that limnological theory and inland water management practices have been developed almost exclusively in Northern Hemisphere temperate latitudes Most of the land masses of the Southern Hemisphere fall within lower latitudes 0° to 40° S where the climate tends to be dry with low cloud cover and with high levels of incident radiation and high water temperatures Wide extremes are experienced in both rainfall and runoff which occur mainly in summer Sedimentary geological structures give rise to dispersive soils and highly turbid waters Physiological behavioural or developmental adaptations in the floral and faunal components are necessary to cope with desiccation and low visibility

Streams and Ground Waters Jeremy B. Jones, Patrick J. Mulholland, 1999-12-06 Streams around the world flow toward the sea in floodplains All along this transit there is exchange of water between the stream itself and the surrounding sediments which form the floodplain Many chemical biological and geological processes occur when water moves back and forth between streams and these flood plain sediments Streams and Groundwaters focuses on the consequences of water flow between streams their underlying
