Biosynthesis and biodegradation of wood components Takayoshi Higuchi, 2012-12-02 Biosynthesis and Biodegradation of Wood Components is a comprehensive account of the biosynthesis and biodegradation of wood and wood components Topics covered range from the localization of polysaccharides and lignins in wood cell walls to the metabolism and synthetic function of cambial tissue along with the function of cell organelles in the biosynthesis of cell wall components The biosynthesis of plant cell wall polysaccharides is also discussed This book is comprised of 22 chapters and begins with an overview of the structure of wood with emphasis on three aspects of sections of wood the cross or transverse section the tangential section and the radial section or face The following chapters deal with the structure and chemistry of the major components of wood cell walls the metabolism and synthetic function of cambial tissue the function of organelles involved in biosynthesis and the biosynthesis both of the major cell wall components of wood cellulose hemicelluloses and lignins and of wood extractives The microbial degradation of cell wall components and aromatic extractives of wood is also considered together with the microorganisms involved in lignin biodegradation as well as the physiology and biochemistry of degradation by white rot fungi This monograph will be of interest to biochemists as well as students and researchers in biochemistry

Biosynthesis and Biodegradation of Wood Components Takayoshi Higuchi, 1985 The Hemicelluloses Workshop Kenneth M. Entwistle, J. C. F. Walker, 2005 The Structure, Biosynthesis, and Degradation of Wood F. Loewus, 2012-12-06 Forest trees constitute one of the major resources of the world and their utilization either for structural purposes or for the materials which they yield dates back to antiquity Over the centuries the exploitation of this resource has become progressively more sophisticated and in many parts of the world has led to the development of highly complex forest based industries The research and development work which led to these industrial uses fostered the formation of numerous technical societies and associations which through their meetings and publications have facilitated communication and the exchange of ideas Over the years there have been numerous symposia devoted to wood and the many facets of its properties and utilization However rarely has the emphasis in such symposia been placed upon the living tree and the changes which it undergoes in relation to its ultimate utilization Hence the Phytochemical Society of North America arranged the symposium The Structure Biosynthesis and Degradation of Wood held at the University of British Columbia in August 1976 the contributions to which form the basis of the present volume The Cambial Derivatives Muhammad Iqbal, 1995 The present monograph deals with the main features of the development and specialization of the tissues of wood and bark It attempts to provide a state of the art synthesis of information available on the development of cambial tissues to conduct future research at the cellular and subcellular level The book which has many instructive figures and high quality photographs equally caters to the interests of students and professionals in structural functional and evolutionary botany forestry and wood science Lignins, 2012-06-25 Lignins are nature's aromatic polymers and are the second most abundant organic constituent of the biosphere next to cellulose Lignification mainly occurs in the walls of terrestrial vascular plants mainly in the secondarily thickened cells of supportive or conductive tissues which thus acquire novel properties This new volume of Advances in Botanical Research gives a special emphasis to the bioengineering of these enigmatic polymers It is divided in nine chapters containing up to date reviews by expert groups in their field Gives a special emphasis to the bioengineering of these enigmatic polymers lignins Divided in nine chapters Contains up to date reviews by expert groups in their field

Kloepper, 2010-01-01 Today many economically important agricultural horticultural and ornamental crop plants are attacked by various soil borne and foliar diseases resulting in billions of dollars in crop losses Currently the most widely used disease management strategy is the use of chemical fungicides However the use of these fungicides has encountered problems such as development of resistance by pathogen to fungicides and rapid degradation of the chemicals Other factors leading to increased interest in alternatives include the increasing cost of soil fumigation lack of suitable replacements for methyl bromide and public concerns over exposure to fungicides Both the agriculture and agri food sector are now expected to move toward environmentally sustainable development while maintaining productivity These concerns and expectations have led to renewed interest on the use of biologically based pest management strategies The green revolution of agriculture brought an enormous increase in food production It not only made the world self sufficient in food but also gave the world's scientists and farmers an immense amount of self respect Though the green revolution did increase food production the productivity levels have remained low and increase was achieved at a cost of intensive use of water
