The Behavior of Texas Birds Kent Rylander, 2010-01-01 Whether it's the sudden plunging dives of Brown Pelicans the singing and aerial displays of Northern Mockingbirds or the communal nesting of Purple Martins innate and learned behaviors are some of the most fascinating things to observe in Texas birds Even casual birdwatchers eventually ask why do they do that while serious birders and ornithologists seek to understand all the behaviors involved in feeding flying mating and rearing young But until now it has been hard to find this information in one handy source In this comprehensive yet easy to use book Kent Rylander distills data from many sources to provide an authoritative guide to the behavior of Texas birds He begins by explaining the principles of animal behavior and illustrating how they can be applied to interpreting bird behaviors in the field The majority of the book is devoted to accounts of more than 400 species of birds that are most likely to be encountered by Texas birdwatchers Each account describes such behaviors as feeding courtship parenting and other behaviors that are significant for that species References to interesting and important articles from scientific journals are incorporated in the species accounts where appropriate and line drawings illustrate some of the behaviors described

Why Birds Do that Michael Furtman, 2004 There's little question that a life without birds around would be boring indeed Birds provide endless fascination and entertainment for millions of people whether we live in the city or in the country From their evocative songs to their sometimes complex and even comical behavior the observation of birds not only enriches our lives but poses many questions For instance why do birds sing and why do they seem to sing mostly in the morning Why do males of many species sport such bright colors Why do some birds hatch naked while others come with thick and fluffy coats of down Why Birds Do That answers many of the common and some not so common questions about the birds that share our world
