Concrete a construction material is widely used because of its excellent properties such as durability workability satisfactory strength and the easy availability of raw materials cement aggregates and water which are used to produce it In recent years the demand for ready mix concrete RMC has increased rapidly The primary reasons behind this are convenience of using RMC in high rise structures shortage of space at construction site saving of time related to the preparation of concrete on site and better quality of RMC compared to the conventional concrete To produce a concrete with specific requirements such as high performance concrete HPC additives and admixtures are added to raw materials of normal concrete to improve some properties by pozzolanic and physical actions Nowadays the concrete admixtures are widely used in the construction projects The main types of chemical admixtures can be summarized as plasticizers accelerating retarding agents air entraining agents waterproofing additives and others such as corrosion inhibitors and coloring agents etc The benefits derived from the use of chemical admixtures include improved durability strength chemical resistance coloring reduction in water and cement requirement and enhanced working properties of concrete These admixtures improve the concrete microstructure by making it denser more homogeneous and uniform leading to enhance its properties such as strength and durability compared to the plain mix Chemical Admixtures for Concrete covers the theory and real world cases to understand the effects of different types of chemical admixture on properties of concrete Effects of different chemical admixtures on fresh and hardened properties of prolonged mixed concrete and their cost effectiveness were investigated Influence of sand to aggregate volume ratio cement content and use of chilled mixing water on the properties of prolonged mixed concrete was studied as well Presenting information on the materials hydration and the strength and durability of cement and concrete with mineral admixtures this book will appeal to practicing engineers and students alike Effect of Hydrated Lime and Other Powdered Admixtures in Concrete Duff Andrew Abrams,1920 Calcium Chloride as an Admixture in Concrete Duff Andrew Abrams,1924 Significance of Tests and Properties of Concrete and Concrete-making Materials Joseph F. superplasticizers in current use in the UK presents the available data on the performance of these admixtures in their two main applications discusses the costs of using them suggests some possible future applications and pinpoints those areas in which more research is needed

The Sustainable Use of Concrete Koji Sakai,Takafumi Noguchi,2012-08-30 Cement based concrete has excellent properties as a construction material and the raw materials of cement rocks and limestone and clay are bountiful Yet its production generates high quantities of CO2 making it a potentially unsustainable material However there are no alternatives to concrete and steel as basic methods for development of socioeconomic infrastructure at this time Highlighting sustainability issues in the construction industry The Sustainable Use of Concrete presents guidelines on how to move toward sustainable concrete construction The book begins by clarifying the historic background and meaning of sustainability after which it outlines areas that need to be considered in connection with sustainability in the concrete and construction field It examines environmental social and cultural and economic aspects then considers an evaluation system of sustainability The authors include various tools and ISO standards and then explore technologies for sustainability with case studies and examples that promote understanding of current technologies Although the construction sector in the broadest sense has come to recognize that infrastructure development over the past two centuries has been unsustainable it has been slow to adjust Comprehensive information and relevant practical guidance are very scarce This book lays out a roadmap for creating a human friendly and safe environment with low environmental burden
