A History of African Higher Education from Antiquity to the Present Y. G-M Lulat,2005-08-30 Until recently Eurocentrist history professors taught that it was the Europeans who brought higher education to the African continent While the Europeans have indeed influenced African education in recent times there is some vital information that most history books leave out for centuries before the arrival of the Europeans the vast and advanced native African civilizations already had sophisticated universities and other institutions of higher education to boast about This book is an attempt to fill the chasm in today s literature regarding this topic It will be of interest to those researching the accurate non Euro biased history of Africa African Studies Review ,2008 Kleio ,2004 Tuning and Harmonisation of Higher Education ,2014 The Oxford Encyclopedia of African Thought Abiola Irele,2010 From St Augustine and early Ethiopian philosophers to the anti colonialist movements of Pan Africanism and Negritude this encyclopedia offers a comprehensive view of African thought covering the intellectual tradition both on the continent in its entirety and throughout the African Diaspora in the Americas and in Europe The term African thought has been interpreted in the broadest sense to embrace all those forms of discourse philosophy political thought religion literature important social movements that contribute to the formulation of a distinctive vision of the world determined by or derived from the African experience The Encyclopedia is a large scale work of 350 entries covering major topics involved in the development of African Thought including historical figures and important social movements producing a collection that is an essential resource for teaching an invaluable companion to independent research and a solid guide for further study The Ethiopian Journal of Higher Education ,2004-12

Differentiation and Articulation in Tertiary Education Systems Njuguna Ng'ethe,George Subotzky,George Afeti,2008 This paper explores an area of tertiary education that is currently understudied the extent and nature of differentiation and articulation in African tertiary education systems The overall finding of the study is that a binary system is dominant characterized by universities and polytechnics as distinct types of institutions Differentiation is clearly evident in Africa though mostly horizontal as opposed to vertical Articulation on the other hand seems to be in its infancy as some universities in their admission requirements do not recognize polytechnic qualifications and mobility between similar institution types is rare National policy market forces institutional reforms industry and regional initiatives drive differentiation Resource constraints isomorphism governance and funding structures and the absence of debate over size and shape act as inhibitors Demand for access appears to be the only driver for articulation while national policies internal governance structures and industry labor market inhibit growth Higher Education Management and Policy ,2008 Tanzanian Affairs ,2005 Journal of Higher Education in Africa ,2005 The Ford Foundation Report ,2000

Culture and Education Margaret Zoller Booth,2004-03-05 Booth analyzes the results of a longitudinal study tracking the academic progress of 80 students in Swaziland who must daily cross boundaries between their traditional African families and a Westernized educational system Particular attention has been paid to the impact of the absence of the father due to migrant labor on children s scholastic achievement The connection between the educational level of mothers and the schooling of daughters is also discussed Booth teaches educational psychology at Bowling Green State University
