Jones, 1968 In Search of African Theatre Scott Kennedy, 1973 Theatre Companies of the World: United States of America, Western Europe (excluding Scandinavia) Colby H. Kullman, William C. Young, 1986 The purpose of this set is to bring together in a convenient format information about the world's more significant theater companies. Articles are grouped by continent or region and are arranged alphabetically by country within these area groups. The People's Republic of China is not covered. Area editors and contributors identified in volume 2 were selected for their specialized knowledge of theater in the area about which they write. Articles include information concerning a company's history, philosophy, performing style, location, facilities, and future plans. For some areas, e.g., India and Japan, rather extensive background on theatrical traditions is also provided. For information in English about outstanding theater companies in most countries, this is likely to be a standard.

Theodore O. Wohlsen Jr. Connecticut State Lib. Hartford Library Journal African Theatre for Development Kamal Salhi, 1998. This book acts as a forum for investigating how African Theatre works and what its place is in this postmodern society. It provides the subject with a degree of detail unmatched in previous books, reflecting a new approach to the study of the performing arts in this region. The book provides an opportunity to discover contemporary material from experts, critics, and artists from across the world. The contributions are in a language and style that allow them to be read either as aids to formal study or as elements of discussion to interest the general reader. Ola Rotimi's African Theatre Niyi Coker, 2005. This work is an exploration into the writing, cultural, and theatrical aesthetics of African writer and director Ola Rotimi. It is a quest and search for an authentic African esthetic that has been transformed by at least two centuries of the European colonization. This work focuses on the aesthetic dimensions of the Ori Olokun theatre under the artistic direction of Ola Rotimi. It reviews Ola Rotimi's vision and impact with the Ori Olokun Company and his quest to formulate a truly authentic African theatre void of the imported European sensibility and colonially inherited aesthetic. The unique creative achievement of Rotimi's work at the Ori Olokun theatre is that it evolved out of the ivory towers of the University, an unfriendly territory as far as the indigenous theatre is concerned. Ola Rotimi dedicated his art to exploring the traditional indigenous artistic expressions of the Nigeria people at a point when the African aesthetic had completely lost ground to the European value system. Three of Rotimi's historical plays are analyzed to understand and locate his historical perspective. African theatre, an issue that has dominated African theatre for the past half century. His solution is that writers must tamper with the English language to temper its Englishness. Clearly, what makes Rotimi unique is that he brings to his plays the linguistic characteristics and nuances that are authentic to African people. African Theatre N. B. East, 1970. African Theatre Martin Banham, David Kerr, 2004. Articles and interviews on theatre in Southern Africa include the familiar territory of South Africa and Zimbabwe but also countries which have received little previous attention such as Angola and Namibia. The articles range from evaluations of single plays to accounts of play-making processes, theatre for development, and the relationship between modern drama and indigenous performance. South African Theatre in the Melting Pot Rolf Solberg, 2003. African Popular Theatre David Kerr, 1995. African popular theater includes conventional drama plus such nonliterary performance as dance, mime, storytelling, masquerades, vaudeville, improvisation, the theater of social action.

resistance Media such as radio film television are included South African Theatre Temple Hauptfleisch, Ian Steadman, 1984 Cross Currents in African Theatre Austin Asagba, 2001
