African Ecology And Human Evolution:

African Ecology and Human Evolution Francois Bourliere, 2017-07-12 The record of man's early evolution though still fragmentary is more complete on the African continent than anywhere else in the world The ecological context of this evolution however has been studied intensively only in recent years This pioneering volume draws together eminent specialists from many fields physical anthropologists zoologists geologists paleontologists and prehistorians who summarize here the results of their diverse research on Pleistocene environments and the cultural and biological evolution of man in Africa This volume was sponsored by the Wenner Gren Foundation for Anthropological Research Inc which met at Burg Wartenstein Austria The editors have field experience in Africa especially eastern and equatorial Africa This experience is coupled with their awareness of the need to integrate results of numerous field studies bearing on the biological behavioral evolution of higher primates with other field studies on the paleoecology and the mammalian ecology of sub Saharan Africa The book includes contributions on Pleistocene stratigraphy and climatic changes throughout the African continent on the origin and evolution of the earliest man like creatures in Africa on the dating distribution and adaptation of Pleistocene hunter gatherer peoples and on the ecology biology and social behavior of African primate and human populations The chapters reflect vividly the state of current knowledge at the time and indicate paths for future research Over 100 maps and figures detailed bibliographies and a comprehensive index contribute to the importance of the volume for basic reference use

Only in Africa Norman Owen-Smith, 2021-10-07 That humans originated from Africa is well known However this is widely regarded as a chance outcome dependant simply on where our common ancestor shared the land with where the great apes lived This volume builds on from the Out of Africa theory and takes the view that it is only in Africa that the evolutionary transitions from a forest inhabiting frugivore to savanna dwelling meat eater could have occurred This book argues that the ecological circumstances that shaped these transitions are exclusive to Africa It describes distinctive features of the ecology of Africa with emphasis on savanna grasslands and relates them to the evolutionary transitions linking early ape men to modern humans It shows how physical features of the continent especially those derived from plate tectonics set the foundations This volume adequately conveys that we are here because of the distinctive features of the ecology of Africa
