Katz, 1993 African Food Systems in Crisis Rebecca Huss-Ashmore, Solomon H. Katz, 2019-07-30 Originally published in 1991 Commissioned by the Task Force on African Famine of the American Anthropological Association this the second part of a project examining the causes of food system failure in Africa and the effects of attempts to remedy the situation It evaluates the often retrogressive results of foreign aid to African nations and offers an anthropological perspective on how to reverse this trend The contributors emphasize integrating all development programs with the regional customs and traditions already in place that have thus far allowed its people to cope with food and water shortages In the past various strategies have failed due to misunderstandings and incorrect assumptions concerning gender roles food consumption habits social relations kinship networks land use and government function New understanding of the culture must be complemented with multifaceted programs incorporating education a concern for grass roots opinion and control attention to production and consumption patterns and various forms of broad spectrum integrated development The uniqueness research is recommended for all who are concerned about worldwide malnutrition and those who understand the need to recognize local traditions as resources that must be included in any successful development program North American Constructions of African Food Crises Anna Zalik, 1997 Human Rights Mark Goodale, 2008-10-20 This innovative reader brings together key works that demonstrate the important and unique contributions anthropologists have made to the understanding and practice of human rights over the last 60 years Draws on a range of intellectual and methodological approaches to reveal both the ambiguities and potential of the postwar human rights project Brings together essays by both contemporary luminaries and seminal figures to provide a rich introduction to the subject Supplemented with selected international human rights documents and links to websites on human rights At Risk Piers Blaikie, Terry Cannon, Ian Davis, Ben Wisner, 2014-01-21 The term natural disaster is often used to refer to natural events such as earthquakes hurricanes or floods However the phrase natural disaster suggests an uncritical acceptance of a deeply engrained ideological and cultural myth At Risk questions this myth and argues that extreme natural events are not disasters until a vulnerable group of people is exposed The updated new edition confronts a further ten years of ever more expensive and deadly disasters and discusses disaster not as an aberration but as a signal failure of mainstream development Two analytical models are provided as tools for understanding vulnerability One links remote and distant root causes to unsafe conditions in a progression of vulnerability The other uses the concepts of access and livelihood to understand why some households are more vulnerable than others Examining key natural events and incorporating strategies to create a safer world this revised edition is an important resource for those involved in the fields of environment and development studies

At Risk Piers M. Blaikie,1994 Examines the significance of the human factor which is as much of a cause of disasters as the natural environment Practical and policy conclusions are drawn with a view to disaster reduction and the promotion of safer environments

Mainstreaming Gender in Environmental Assessment and Early Warning Joni Seager, Women in Agriculture and Rural Life ,1998 Development Anthropology Network ,1992 Gender and Environment in Africa Ingrid Yngström,1994 Development Anthropologist ,1995 Environment Kay Anderson,Bruce Braun,2008 The articles collected together in this volume capture conceptual developments in the field of environmental studies in human geography and illustrate the diversity and remarkable vitality of geographical research on society environment relations

Agrindex ,1993 The Hunger Report 1993 Peter Uvin,1994-04 The Hunger Report 1993 is the fifth in a series by the Brown University World Hunger Program Drawing on numerous reports of hunger researchers monitors and policy makers it classifies and clarifies their diverse data within a single typology of hunger caused by food shortage food poverty and food deprivation Policy makers academicians and practitioners concerned with hunger and development will find this book an invaluable resource In the year 1993 hunger was definitely on the international development agenda The world has witnessed with mounting concern the needless persistence of hunger and along with it a proliferation of often conflicting supporting data a multiplication of often conflicting institutional efforts an escalation in political rhetoric and an overall increase in media and public attention

The Time of AIDS Gilbert Herdt,Shirley Lindenbaum,1992-01-29 The widespread tragedy of the AIDS epidemic is forcing social scientists to change the way they think about and study subgroups within the majority culture How is the concept of culture relevant to the study of AIDS How can social science methods be used to uncover the epidemiology of this deadly disease And how can social scientists deploy what they learn to help solve the problems posed by AIDS The Time of AIDS explores and provides provocative insights on these three critical issues By examining research conducted with various cultural groups and in different countries the authors offer insight on how to identify the distinct way different communities respond to the threat of this disease These studies demonstrate that a single theory and method will not capture the importance of the AIDS epidemic but a close look at the culture and psychology of a society can inspire more effective ways of education intervention and arrest of the transmission of the virus Researchers and practitioners in anthropology psychology sociology and nursing will benefit from this enlightening volume
