

The Africans: A Triple Heritage

The Africans: A Triple Heritage is a documentary history, written and narrated by Dr. Ali Mazrui in the early 1980s and jointly produced by the BBC and the Public Broadcasting Service (WETA, Washington) in association with the Nigerian Television Authority. A book by the same title was jointly published by BBC Publications and Little, Brown and Company. The film series premiered in 1986 on BBC and controversially on local PBS stations throughout the United States.

Brief Review of the Series

Africa's triple heritage, as envisioned by Mazrui and promoted in this documentary project, is a product resulting from three major influences: (1) an indigenous heritage borne out of time and climate change; (2) the heritage of eurocentric capitalism forced on Africans by European colonialism; and (3) the spread of Islam by both jihad and evangelism. The negative effects of this history have yet to be addressed by independent African leaders, while the West has tended to regard Africa as recipient rather than as transmitter of effects. Yet Africa has transformed both Europe and America in the past, Mazrui points out, and the difficult situation in which Africa finds itself today (economically dependent, culturally mixed, and politically unstable) is the price it has had to pay for Western development.

Mazrui,1987 Looks at the history geography and culture of Africa assesses native Arab and Western influences and discusses sports religion government and social issues in Africa The Africans ,1987 Controversial examination of contemporary Africa in terms of its triple heritage what is indigenous what was contributed by Islam and what was acquired from the West Africans John Iliffe,2017-07-13 In a vast and all embracing study of Africa from the origins of mankind to the present day John Iliffe refocuses its history on the peopling of an environmentally hostile continent Africans have been pioneers struggling against disease and nature but during the last century their inherited culture has interacted with medical progress to produce the most rapid population growth the world has ever seen This new edition incorporates genetic and linguistic findings throwing light on early African history and summarises research that has transformed the study of the Atlantic slave trade It also examines the consequences of a rapidly growing youthful population the hopeful but uncertain democratisation and economic recovery of the early twenty first century the containment of the AIDS epidemic and the turmoil within Islam that has produced the Arab Spring Africans The History of a Continent is thus a single story binding modern men and women to their earliest human ancestors The Triple Heritage of Contemporary Africa Noah Dzobo,2005
