Africas Ecology:

African Ecology Clive Alfred Spinage, 2012-01-28 In view of the rapidly changing ecology of Africa this work provides benchmarks for some of the major and more neglected aspects with an accent on historical data to enable habitats to be seen in relation to their previous state forming a background reference work to understanding how the ecology of Africa has been shaped by its past Reviewing historical data wherever possible it adopts an holistic view treating man as well as animals with accent on diseases both human and animal which have been a potent force in shaping Africa s ecology a role neglected in ecological studies

African Ecology and Human Evolution Francis Clark Howell, François Bourlière, 2008 The record of man s early evolution though still fragmentary is more complete on the African continent than anywhere else in the world The ecological context of this evolution however has been studied intensively only in recent years This pioneering volume draws together eminent specialists from many fields physical anthropologists zoologists geologists paleontologists and prehistorians who summarize here the results of their diverse research on Pleistocene environments and the cultural and biological evolution of man in Africa This volume was sponsored by the Wenner Gren Foundation for Anthropological Research Inc which met at Burg Wartenstein Austria The editors have field experience in Africa especially eastern and equatorial Africa This experience is coupled with their awareness of the need to integrate results of numerous field studies bearing on the biological behavioral evolution of higher primates with other field studies on the paleoecology and the mammalian ecology of sub Saharan Africa The book includes contributions on Pleistocene stratigraphy and climatic changes throughout the African continent on the origin and evolution of the earliest man like creatures in Africa on the dating distribution and adaptation of Pleistocene hunter gatherer peoples and on the ecology biology and social behavior of African primate and human populations The chapters reflect vividly the state of current knowledge at the time and indicate paths for future research Over 100 maps and figures detailed bibliographies and a comprehensive index contribute to the importance of the volume for basic reference use F Clark Howell is professor emeritus of paleoanthropology at the University of California Berkeley where he is co director of the Laboratory of Human Studies He is also curator at The University of California Museum of Paleontology François Bourlière 1913 1993 was professor of physiology at the University of Paris He is also credited with founding the Gerontology Research Unit of Institute of Health and Medical Research and was a member of Paris hospitals

An Introduction to West African Animal Ecology C. I. O. Olaniyan, 1968      African Rain Forest Ecology and Conservation William Weber, Lee J. T. White, Lisa Naughton-Treves, Amy Vedder, 2001-01-01 Extending from west Africa to Madagascar from the vast lowland Congo Basin to the archipelago of forest islands on its eastern rim the African rain forest is surpassed in size only by the Amazon This book sheds light on the current efforts to understand and conserve the African rain forest an area in need of urgent action to save its biological wealth cultural heritage and economic potential Written by conservation scientists and practitioners based in the African rain forest the book offers a multidisciplinary perspective that integrates many biological and social sciences Early chapters trace the forces from paleoecological factors to recent human actions that have shaped the African forest environment The next chapters discuss the dominant biological patterns of species ranging from the distinctive elephants gorillas and okapi to the less well known birds butterflies and amphibians Other chapters focus on how such different groups as hunter gatherers forest farmers bushmeat hunters recent immigrants and commercial foresters have used the forests Several authors stress the need for tighter links between research and conservation action The final section draws lessons from the collective experience of those working in an Africa wracked by political strife and economic hardship      Only in Africa Norman Owen-Smith, 2021-10-07 That humans originated from Africa is well known However this is widely regarded as a chance outcome dependant simply on where our common ancestor shared the land with where the great apes lived This volume builds on from the Out of Africa theory and takes the view that it is only in Africa that the evolutionary transitions from a forest inhabiting frugivore to savanna dwelling meat eater could have occurred This book argues that the ecological circumstances that shaped these transitions are exclusive to Africa It describes distinctive features of the ecology of Africa with emphasis on savanna grasslands and relates them to the evolutionary transitions linking early ape men to modern humans It shows how physical features of the continent especially those derived from plate tectonics set the foundations This volume adequately conveys that we are here because of the distinctive features of the ecology of Africa
