Caring For Justice:

Caring for Justice Robin West, 1999-03 Over the past decade mainstream feminist theory has repeatedly and urgently cautioned against arguments which assert the existence of fundamental or essential differences between men and women Any biological or natural differences between the sexes are often flatly denied on the grounds that such an acknowledgment will impede women s claims to equal treatment In Caring for Justice Robin West turns her sensitive measured eye to the consequences of this widespread refusal to consider how women s lived experiences and perspectives may differ from those of men Her work calls attention to two critical areas in which an inadequate recognition of women s distinctive experiences has failed jurisprudence We are in desperate need she contends both of a theory of justice which incorporates women s distinctive moral voice on the meaning of justice into our discourse and of a theory of harm which better acknowledges compensates and seeks to prevent the various harms which women disproportionately and distinctively suffer Providing a fresh feminist perspective on traditional jurisprudence West examines such issues as the nature of justice the concept of harm economic theories of value and the utility of constitutional discourse She illuminates the adverse repercussions of the anti essentialist position for jurisprudence and offers strategies for correcting them Far from espousing a return to essentialism West argues an anti anti essentialism which greatly refines our understanding of the similarities and differences between women and men

Justice And Care Virginia Held, 1995-11-03 This book an essential tool for anyone studying the state of feminist thought in particular or ethical theory in general shows the outlines of an ethic of care in the distinctive practices of African American communities and considers how the values of care and justice can be reformulated Caring for Justice, Justifying Care Maureen Sander-Staudt, 2002 Caring Democracy Joan C. Tronto, 2013-04-12 A rethinking of American democracy that puts caring responsibilities at the center Americans now face a caring deficit there are simply too many demands on people's time for us to care adequately for our children elderly people and ourselves At the same time political involvement in the United States is at an all time low and although political life should help us to care better people see caring as unsupported by public life and deem the concerns of politics as remote from their lives Caring Democracy argues that we need to rethink American democracy as well as our fundamental values and commitments from a caring perspective What it means to be a citizen is to be someone who takes up the challenge how should we best allocate care responsibilities in society Joan Tronto argues that we need to look again at how gender race class and market forces misallocate caring responsibilities and think about freedom and equality from the standpoint of making caring more just The idea that production and economic life are the most important political and human concerns ignores the reality that caring for ourselves and others should be the highest value that shapes how we view the economy politics and institutions such as schools and the family Care is at the center of our human lives but Tronto argues it is currently too far removed from the concerns of politics Caring Democracy traces the reasons for this disconnection and argues for the need to make care not economics the central concern of democratic political life The Ethics of Care Virginia Held, 2006 The author assesses the ethics of care as a promising alternative to the familiar moral theories that serve so inadequately to guide our lives Held examines what we mean by care and focuses on caring relationships She also looks at the potential of care for dealing with social issues and global problems Caring for Families in Court Barbara A. Babb, Judith D. Moran, 2019-01-15 In many US courts and internationally family law cases constitute almost half of the trial caseload These matters include child abuse and neglect and juvenile delinquency as well as divorce custody paternity and other traditional family law issues In this book the authors argue that reforms to the family justice system are necessary to enable it to assist families and children effectively The authors propose an approach that envisions the family court as a care center by blending existing theories surrounding court reform in family law with an ethic of care and narrative practice Building on conceptual procedural and structural reforms of the past several decades the authors define the concept of a unified family court created along interdisciplinary lines a paradigm that is particularly well suited to inform the work of family courts These prior reforms have contributed to enhancing the family justice system as courts now can shape comprehensive outcomes designed to improve the lives of families and children by taking into account both their legal and non legal needs In doing so courts can utilize each family's story as a foundation to fashion a resolution of their unique issues In the book the authors aim to strengthen a court's problem solving capabilities by discussing how incorporating an ethic of care and appreciating the family narrative can add to the court's effectiveness in responding to families and children Creating the court as a care center the authors conclude should lie at the heart of how a family justice system operates The authors are well known figures in the area and have been involved in family court reform on both a US national and an international scale for many years

Justice and Caring Michael S. Katz, Nel Noddings, Kenneth A. Strike, 1999-04-09

This thought provoking volume confronts the expected tension between care and justice as moral orientations. These original essays by renowned educators reveal how these two moral orientations can work together to produce wiser and more practical policies and practices. The authors explore problems at every level of education and tackle tough questions in theory practice and policy making. Using real life examples they illustrate the great value of theoretical collaboration instead of competing with each other. Justice and care should complement each other in both moral theory and practice.

The Heart of Justice Daniel Engster, 2007-04-26

The Heart of Justice proposes a new framework of political justice based upon the practice of caring. Integrating the insights of earlier care theorists with the concerns of traditional justice theorists Engster forges a new synthesis between care and justice and further argues that the institutional and policy commitments of care theory must be recognized as central to any adequate theory of justice. Engster begins by offering a practice based account of caring and a theory of obligation that explains why individuals should care for others. He then systematically demonstrates the implications of this account of caring for domestic politics economics international relations and culture. In each of these areas he reviews the contributions of earlier care theorists and then extends their arguments to provide a more complete description of the institutions and policies of a caring society. Care ethics is further put in dialogue with diverse cultural and religious traditions and used to address the challenges of multicultural justice cultural relativism and international human rights. More fully than other works on care theory this book provides an over arching account of the institutions and policies of a caring society. The Heart of Justice provides the first full account of a theory of justice based upon care ethics and should be of interest to anyone interested in thinking about the nature of our moral obligations and the institutions of a just society.
