African-Centred Management Education David N. Abdulai,2016-04-01 In African Centred Management Education Professor Abdulai looks critically at the failings of management education in Africa and how that has impacted growth and development efforts especially at this critical stage in the continent's positive growth and development trajectory He concludes that Africa's current positive economic growth cannot be sustained without a significant contribution from its human capital He adds that the outstanding economic record of Asian economies in recent decades dramatically illustrates how important human capital is to growth These countries lacking natural resources and importing practically all their energy requirements have grown rapidly by relying on a well trained educated and conscientious workforce Professor Abdulai believes that Africa too can sustain its current growth and development by effectively combining its abundant natural resources with its human capital to attain its economic development but this will require an African cadre of well trained managers at the helm of both private and public sector institutions For this to become a reality management education in Africa will have to play a significant role but the author argues that it cannot be effective by continually mimicking the West in the programmes it delivers It must come up with innovative and relevant pedagogy that will address the special challenges that the continent faces and deliver an African centred management education As well as pointing to the failures of management education in Africa Abdulai offers suggestions as to how to make management education really contribute to the education of Africans in order to sustain current and future development South African Scope ,1961 Current Commercial Cases 2011 , Black British Culture and Society Kwesi Owusu,2003-09-02 Black British Culture and Society brings together in one indispensable volume key writings on the Black community in Britain from the Windrush immigrations of the late 1940s and 1950s to contemporary multicultural Britain Combining classic writings on Black British life with new specially commissioned articles Black British Culture and Society records the history of the post war African and Caribbean diaspora tracing the transformations of Black culture in British society Black British Culture and Society explores key facets of the Black experience charting Black Britons struggles to carve out their own identity and place in an often hostile society The articles reflect the rich diversity of the Black British experience addressing economic and social issues such as health religion education feminism old age community and race relations as well as Black culture and the arts with discussions of performance carnival sport style literature theatre art and film making The contributors examine the often tense relationship between successful Black public figures and the media and address the role of the Black intellectual in public life Featuring interviews with noted Black artists and writers such as Aubrey Williams Mustapha Matura and Caryl Phillips and including articles from key contemporary thinkers such as Stuart Hall A Sivanandan Paul Gilroy and Henry Louis Gates Black British Culture and Society provides a rich resource of analysis critique and comment on the Black community's distinctive
