African Native Music:

African Native Music, 1936      African Music Alexander Akorlie Agordoh, 2005 It is customary in the Western world for people to use the term African music as if it were a single clearly identifiable phenomenon One should not be surprised at the diversity of music and the difficulty of isolating distinctly African features common to the whole continent This important book is an overview of music in Africa      African Native Music, 1970 This bibliography deals with African Native music but its scope is confined to the Negro and Bantu cultures roughly south of the Sahara The entries are arranged geographically some tribes have for this purpose been arbitrarily split up although no more arbitrarily than in political reality Searchers after the music of particular tribes are advised not to neglect the general sections where comprehensive entries relating to many parts of the continent have been placed In default of any standard guide to tribal nomenclature except in the Belgian Congo the best known names have been preferred in the annotations Prefatory note      African Music, 1973      The World of South African Music Christine Lucia, 2009-03-26 The present Reader is a selection of texts on South African music which are chosen not only for their importance or the frequency of citations but with the express purpose of providing the reader with a deep understanding of the music itself Consequently there are readings that are chosen because they have been influential but there are also many which though published have not enjoyed very wide circulation There are those which are of obvious historic interest and others which speak to contemporary issues Among other things the volume provides an excellent sense of the varying ideologies and approaches that determine the relationship between author and subject The reader is indispensable to scholars and enthusiasts of South African music and it is of great interest to ethnomusicologists more generally It is also an excellent resource for those who do not have immediate access to harder to find articles and is perhaps most vital to those who are looking to find a way into the world of South African music      African Music John Gray, 1991-04-04 African Music is devoted to ethnographic anthropological musicological and popular studies of sub Saharan African music from the 1890s to the present The bibliography is organized into six basic sections Section one covers works on cultural policy and the performing arts in sub Saharan Africa while section two provides a selected guide to works on ethnomusicology Section three the largest deals with general works and regional country studies of traditional sub Saharan musics defined most simply as the local village or rural musics of West Central Southern and East Africa General and regional country studies of African pop music as well as biographical and critical studies of 275 popular musicians and groups are covered in section four Section five focuses on the acculturated or art music traditions of Africa s Westernized elite citing both general works and biographical critical studies on African composers and performers The sixth and final music section covers general studies on African church or liturgical music The items cited in these six sections range from books dissertations unpublished papers and periodical and newspaper articles to films videotapes and audiotapes in all of the major Western languages as well as several African ones The three appendixes deal respectively with reference works on
