For over forty years professor and culinary historian Jessica B. Harris has collected postcards depicting Africans and their descendants in the American diaspora. They are presented for the first time in this exquisite volume Vintage Postcards from the African World In the Dignity of Their Work and the Joy of Their Play brings together more than 150 images providing a visual document of more than a century of work in agricultural and culinary pursuits and joy in entertainments, parades and celebrations. Organized by geography: Africa, the Caribbean and the United States, as well as by the types of scenes depicted: the farm, the garden and the sea, the marketplace, the vendors and the cooks, leisure entertainments and festivities. The images capture the dignity of the labors of everyday life and the pride of festive occasions. Superb and rare images demonstrate everything from how Africans and their descendants dressed to what tools they used to how their entertainments provided relief from toil. Three essays accompany the postcards, one of which details Harris's collection and the collecting process. A second presents suggestions on how to interpret the cards. A final essay gives brief information on the history of postcards and postcard dating and its increasing use and value to scholars. African Textiles, 1994. The imaginative ideas and activities offer refreshing new opportunities for beginning to explore the visual world through art. Popular themes promote the teaching of techniques, skills and processes and include the sky, bottles, flowers, faces, paper, under our feet, wheels, leaves and many more. Originating in longstanding visual traditions including street crier prints and costume albums, these images share certain conventions as they seek to convey knowledge about different peoples. The genre of the type became widespread in the early modern period, developing into a global language of identity. The chapters explore diverse pictorial representations of types, customs and dress in numerous media including paintings, prints, postcards, photographs and garments. Together they reveal that the activation of typological strategies including seriality, repetition, appropriation and subversion has produced a universal and dynamic pictorial language. Typological images highlight the tensions between the local and the international, the specific and the communal, and similarity and difference inherent in the construction of identity. The first full-length study to treat these images as a broader genre, Visual Typologies gives voice to a marginalized form of representation Together the chapters debunk the classification of such images as unmediated and authentic representations offering fresh methodological frameworks to consider their meanings locally and globally and establishing common ground about the operations of objects that sought to shape embody or challenge individual and collective identities African Arts ,2006 The Research Workshop Paula Rogovin,2001 Strategies to develop and support student research in the classroom Art on Sight: The Best Art Walks In and Near New York City Lucy D.
