Afrique Majeure:

Time for Africa's Emergence? Sa'ah François Guimatsia, 2016-05-30 Where do things stand today in Africa after some 56 years of independence Well the continent is not just a land of crises and hardships it also has what it takes to become emergent this 21st century abundant natural resources a youthful and dynamic population a great potential for growth etc But most wounds inflicted by the colonial and neocolonial systems to date remain unhealed Africans therefore have three crucial prerequisites to fulfill for their continent's renaissance regain their lost cultural balance put in place a solid economic backbone and promote a leadership committed to good governance and continental integration In this illuminating book written from a refreshing African perspective the author examines the facts and shares his deep conviction without indulging in angst or finger pointing that Africans should build their continent's emergence on a great sense of patriotism combined with sound preparation and intelligent cooperation bearing in mind the potent examples set by Nelson Mandela Thomas Sankara and other world political icons

Foreign Aid Carol Lancaster, 2008-09-15 A twentieth century innovation foreign aid has become a familiar and even expected element in international relations But scholars and government officials continue to debate why countries provide it some claim that it is primarily a tool of diplomacy some argue that it is largely intended to support development in poor countries and still others point out its myriad newer uses Carol Lancaster effectively puts this dispute to rest here by providing the most comprehensive answer yet to the question of why governments give foreign aid She argues that because of domestic politics in aid giving countries it has always been and will continue to be used to achieve a mixture of different goals Drawing on her expertise in both comparative politics and international relations and on her experience as a former public official Lancaster provides five in depth case studies the United States Japan France Germany and Denmark that demonstrate how domestic politics and international pressures combine to shape how and why donor governments give aid In doing so she explores the impact on foreign aid of political institutions interest groups and the ways governments organize their giving Her findings provide essential insight for scholars of international relations and comparative politics as well as anyone involved with foreign aid or foreign policy
