Pension Reforms in Central, Eastern, and Southeastern Europe Igor Guardiancich,2013 This book traces and analyzes the legislation and implementation of pension reforms in four Central Eastern and Southeastern European countries Croatia Hungary Poland and Slovenia By comparing the political economy of their policymaking processes it seeks to pinpoint regularities between institutional settings actor constellations decision making strategies and reform Guardiancich employs a historical institutionalist framework to analyze the policies actors and institutions that characterized the period between the collapse of socialism and the global financial crisis of 2008 2011 He argues that viable pension reforms should not be seen simply as an event but rather as a continuing process that must be fiscally socially and politically sustainable In particular the primary goal of a pension scheme is to reduce poverty provide adequate retirement income and insure against the risks of old age within given fiscal constraints and this will happen only if the scheme enjoys continuing political support at all levels To this end the author individuates those institutional characteristics of countries that increase the consistency of reforms and lower the likelihood of policy reversals in time Pension Reforms in Central Eastern and Southeastern Europe will be of interest to students and scholars of political science political economy social policy and economics Journal of Economic Literature ,1990 Yearbook on International Communist Affairs ,1990 Bibliographie der Wirtschaftswissenschaften ,1990 The Spread of Economic Ideas and the Political Economy Paradigm Shift in Eastern Europe Paul Dragoş Aligică,2004 The fast political and economic transition from communism to democracy and market economy in Eastern Europe in the 1990 s has been preceded by a lengthy and yet unfinished transition in the realm of economic and political ideas The change in the realm of ideas was the basic precondition and one of the major forces that set into motion the transformations leading to the collapse of the communist regime and the emergence on its ruins of a liberal order The dissertation is an attempt to explore one specific aspect of this change of ideas phenomenon the political economy paradigm shift The study traces the process of diffusion of Western economic ideas during the ten years before and after 1989 through a comparative examination of nine East European countries It systematically investigates using expert surveys content analysis and international databases the institutions networks and channels associated to this process The study goes beyond a descriptive account and examines the paradigm shift by applying it a series of theories models and interpretive frameworks meant to identify the mechanisms and processes through which the most fundamental ideas about institutional order are selected The result is not only a systematic description of how the Western political economy ideas diffused in Eastern Europe but also an assessment of the factors and mechanisms facilitating or hindering this process
