introduction to gerontology available today Handbook of Sociology and Human Rights David L. Brunnsma,Keri E. Lyall

Smith,Brian K Gran,2015-10-23 Long the province of international law human rights now enjoys a renaissance of studies and new perspectives from the social sciences This landmark book is the first to synthesize and comprehensively evaluate this body of work It fosters an interdisciplinary international and critical engagement both in the social study of human rights and the establishment of a human rights approach throughout the field of sociology Sociological perspectives bring new questions to the interdisciplinary study of human rights as amply illustrated in this book The Handbook is indispensable to any interdisciplinary collection on human rights or on sociology This text Brings new perspectives to the study of human rights in an interdisciplinary fashion Offers state of the art summaries critical discussions of established human rights paradigms and a host of new insights and further research directions Fosters a comprehensive human rights approach to sociology topically representing all 45 sections of the American Sociological Association The Environment for Aging Russell A. Ward,Mark

La Gory,Susan R. Sherman,1988 The nature and consequences of aging depend on its environmental context and the literature does not treat the various environmental dimensions in an integrated fashion The authors introduce a general approach to the human ecosystem highlighting theoretical and empirical issues necessary to an understanding of person environment interaction related to aging They then investigate in detail three aspects of the environment of older persons residential and neighborhood interpersonal support networks and age related attitudes They give specific attention to the impact of the age composition of neighborhoods and interpersonal networks The authors present findings from their interview survey of 1 185 community residents aged 60 and over Major findings from the interviews include Despite objective neighborhood problems older persons express high neighborhood satisfaction This partly reflects limited residential options as well as a passive and vicarious spatial experience The environment is experienced in diverse ways however urbanism and personal competence shape the nature and outcomes of person environment interaction Older persons have relatively robust interpersonal support networks Perceived sufficiency of contact and support are more salient to morale than are more objective measures of interpersonal support Although attitudes toward other older people are generally favorable patterns of age identity reflect a detrimental view of aging There is little evidence that socialization for aging or age group solidarity make aging easier in this regard Older persons exhibit moderate age homogeneity within their interpersonal networks partly reflecting neighborhood age concentration Contrary to the apparent benefits of planned age segregated housing age homogeneity in neighborhoods and networks does not contribute to well being The authors examine three major themes in their concluding chapter age itself does not loom large in the lives of these community residents though age becomes salient under certain conditions there is diversity in the implications of the environmental context for aging in particular reflecting an environmental docility hypothesis and aging must be viewed in interactional or transactional terms older people construct the environment as a subjective entity

Black Inventors in the Age of Segregation Rayvon Fouché, 2005-09-09 This pathbreaking study examines the life and work of three African American inventors Granville Woods Lewis Latimer and Shelby Davidson Describing the struggles of each man to balance racial identity with a desire to be judged solely on the merit of his work Rayvon Fouche provides a nuanced view of African American contributors to technology during a period of rapid industrialization back cover
