International Perspectives on Self-Regulation and Health John G. Carlson, A. Ronald Seifert, 2013-11-21

An attractive feature of self regulation therapies is that instead of doing something to the patients they teach them to do something for them selves Furthermore the fact that the patient is able to do something to cope with his or her health problem can produce a significant reduction in the stress that may have contributed to that problem and in the additional stress that it produces While the idea that the mind can play a role in the health of the body and some therapeutic techniques based on this idea are not new remarkable scientific advances have been made recently in the area of self regulation and health There has been an exciting and rapidly accelerating increase in our basic science knowledge of homeostasis or in other words how the body regulates itself in order to maintain health Technical and conceptual advances are increasing our knowledge of the details of such regulation at all levels cells tissues organs organ systems and the body as a whole We are learning how the competing demands of different elements at each of these levels are adjusted by the brain which with its neural and humoral mechanisms is the supreme organ of integration of the body integration it is more and more apparent that baroreceptor reflexes though preponderantly influencing cardiovascular functions are not limited to cardiovascular control Their influence on respiration has been well known since the earliest studies on baroreflexes and wider influences have more recently been shown e g on hormone release on sleep and vigilance and on emotional behavior Even within the scope of cardiovascular regulation the integrated action of baroreflexes is not only directly exerted on the heart and blood vessels but is also exerted through more devious but no less important routes such as renin release from juxtaglomerular cells and sodium and water reabsorption by the renal tubules Biological Psychology ,1992 Merrill-Palmer Quarterly ,1990 Handbook of Child Psychology: Social, emotional, and personality development ,1997 NASA Conference Publication ,1988 Mental-state Estimation, 1987 ,1988 The Mental State Estimation Workshop 1987 was held June 3 4 1987 in Williamsburg 9 Virginia The workshop was sponsored by the Human Engineering Methods Group9 Crew Vehicle Interface Research Branch Flight Management Division NASA Langley Research Center and the Center for Ergonomics Research and Training Old Dominion University Norfolk_ Virginia A total of 78 persons attended the workshop and they represented the government corporations and universities One purpose of the workshop was to examine the status of the idea that cognitive and emotional processes or mental states are reflected in discriminable patterns of physiological response The workshop was designed to explore the potential of a technology based on this concept and the projected flight management applications for such a technology The papers presented in the conference proceedings reflect the breadth of techniques and areas of study in the examination of mental states and human performance
