H. Brubaker, 1987-07 Long term care of the elderly has become an important issue in recent years. Researchers and policy makers are urgently seeking ways of improving social service systems in response to a dramatic increase in the number of older people as a percentage of the total population. In this comprehensive collection of original papers, leading scholars and practitioners draw on the latest empirical research in their discussion of the role of family members as informal care givers, the interaction between families and social service systems both community based and institutional, and the policy implications of integrating family members into the continuum of long term care of the elderly.
