Caring For Deprived Children International Case Studies Of Residential Setting:

Caring for Deprived Children Christopher J. Payne,1979 Caring for the Deprived Child Christopher J. Payne,Keith White,1979 Family Centred Group Care: Model Building Frank Ainsworth,2018-10-26 Published in 1997 this study focused on building and empirically validating a model of family centred group care This is an alternative to the traditional model of group child care that is primarily child centred and which reflects the notion of group care as a substitute for parental care The model represents a step forward in the conceptualization of group care practice as both child centred and family affirming The Family Centred Group Care instrument used in the study is unique in that this is the first to measure a model of group care empirically The book will be of interest to child welfare practitioners social workers child care workers and other human service personnel as well as managers of agencies that provide group care services for children and at risk youth Researchers and policy makers will also find this book useful as the study advances the application of empirical methodology to human service programs International Journal of Child & Family Welfare , Residential Care for Children Roger Bullock,Michael Little,Spencer Millham,1993 The last two decades have seen a rapid decline in the use of residential care for children but why This review examines research into residential child care undertaken since World War II It reveals the changing role of residential care and examines its effects on children concluding that the more child centred and overtly caring the regime the better the outcome for children from the point of view of their education personal growth development and social conduct European Societies in Transition Dan Sandu,2010 The contributions in this volume on social care and welfare disadvantaged groups or individuals are intended to be useful in the Eastern European social context to those who experienced or study the communist rule The transition in Eastern societies is fast paced sometimes people oppose it or refuse to be involved Rules are firm and imposed according to already established models in Western European countries Society tends to become more ferocious in content but more accessible through media and democratic liberties Changes are very swift and need greater attention because of the fundamental and structural nature of transformations in an age of transition Residential Care of Children Mark E. Courtney,Dorota Iwaniec,2009-03-25 Residential Care of Children fills major gaps in knowledge about residential care of children and is sure to inform ongoing debates within and between nations about the appropriate use of such institutions Each case study chapter provides a rich description of the development current status and future of residential care in countries from Brazil to Botswana Chapters describe how residential care is defined in the country in question how it has evolved over time including its history trends over time and any landmark events in the history of residential care Authors examine factors historical political economic ideological and cultural that have contributed to the observed pattern of development of residential care and provide a description of the current state of residential care number of children in care ages average length of stay reasons that children youth are placed in residential care etc Lastly each case study describes expected future directions for residential care and potential concerns Two integrative chapters provide a critical cross national perspective identifying common themes analyzing underlying factors and speculating about the future of residential child care across the globe This insight filled book will be required reading for all child welfare scholars particularly as international perspectives become increasingly emphasized

Managing Behavioural Treatment Clive R. Hollin, Kevin J. Epps, David J. Kendrick, 1995 Focuses on the issues of organizing and managing the delivery of the behavioural programme to maximum effect Organizational structure policy making clarity in identifying institutional and professional needs staff training and evaluative research are all covered

Comparing the Policy of Aboriginal Assimilation Andrew Armitage, 2011-11-01 The aboriginal people of Australia Canada and New Zealand became minorities in their own countries in the nineteenth century The expanding British Empire had its own vision for the future of these peoples which was expressed in 1837 by the Select Committee on Aborigines of the House of Commons It was a vision of the steps necessary for them to become civilized Christian and citizens in a word assimilated This book provides the first systematic and comparative treatment of the social policy of assimilation that was followed in these three countries The recommendations of the 1837 committee were broadly followed by each of the three countries but there were major differences in the means that were used Australia began with a denial of the aboriginal presence Canada began establishing a register of all status Indians and New Zealand began by giving all Maori British citizenship The policy of assimilation is traced through five principal phases a period of initial contact when the power relationships necessary to carry out the policy were established a period in which the policy was passive and in which the aboriginal people were expected to die out or merge with the immigrant populations a period of aggressive policy in which specific social policies were introduced to suppress aboriginal institutions a period of integration in which it was thought that the policy could be achieved through disregarding the aboriginal existence and the present period in which the policy is being reversed as aboriginal people re establish control of their own social policy As well as providing comprehensive and comparative data on the conduct of the policy of assimilation the book provides a series of accounts of the reasons given for the policy in each period These lead to an analysis of the origins of the policy within the immigrant societies of the British Commonwealth and of the reasons for its persistence In the end the policy of assimilation is shown to be primarily an expression of the racist and colonial nature of the immigrant societies Today the aboriginal societies are reasserting themselves and there are some grounds for hope that a plural form of social policy can be brought into effect which accommodates the need to respect differences between the aboriginal and immigrant societies

Children in and Out of Care Claire Wendelken, 1983

Another Kind of Home Angus Skinner, Social Work Services Inspectorate for Scotland, 1992 This report provides a strategic overview of the issues confronting residential child care services and at the same time addresses some basic issues that affect the experience and quality of daily life of young people in residential care The focus of the review has been the 154 homes and schools in Scotland which are either run by or registered with a local authority social work department and provide care for the purposes of the Social Work Scotland Act 1968 The emphasis throughout the report is on the young people s personal experience of their public service with its immediate and long term effects on individuals lives
