Parrish, 2014-04-21 The virtue of mercy is widely admired but is now marginalized in contemporary public life Yet for centuries it held a secure place in western public discourse without implying a necessary contradiction with justice Alex Tuckness and John M Parrish ask how and why this changed Examining Christian and non Christian ancient traditions along with Kantian and utilitarian strains of thought they offer a persuasive account of how our perception of mercy has been transformed by Enlightenment conceptions of impartiality and equality that place justice and mercy in tension Understanding the logic of this decline they argue will make it possible to promote and defend a more robust role for mercy in public life Their study ranges from Homer to the late Enlightenment and from ancient tragedies to medieval theologies to contemporary philosophical texts and will be valuable to readers in political philosophy political theory and the philosophy of law The Art of Empire Lee M. Jefferson, Robin M. Jensen, 2015-10-01 In recent years art historians such as Johannes Deckers Picturing the Bible 2009 have argued for a significant transition in fourth and fifth century images of Jesus following the conversion of Constantine Broadly speaking they perceive the image of a peaceful benevolent shepherd transformed into a powerful enthroned Jesus mimicking and mirroring the dominance and authority of the emperor The powers of church and state are thus conveniently synthesized in such a potent image This deeply rooted position assumes that ante pacem images of Jesus were uniformly humble while post Constantinian images exuded the grandeur of power and glory The Art of Empire contends that the art and imagery of Late Antiquity merits a more nuanced understanding of the context of the imperial period before and after Constantine The chapters in this collection each treat an aspect of the relationship between early Christian art and the rituals practices or imagery of the Empire and offer a new and fresh perspective on the development of Christian art in its imperial background Complete Works of Rev.
