

LITERATURE AS SIGNIFICANT HUMAN EXPERIENCE

John Michael Davis

"That is part of the beauty of all literature. You discover that your longings are universal longings, that you're not only and isolated from anyone. You belong." - F. Scott Fitzgerald

DEFINITION OF LITERATURE

- Literature is any form of writing which deals with the significant human experience – his society and his experiences – which is artistically conceived for an effect (Malonzo, 2014)
- Literature is the enactment of human possibilities, or a vehicle that will help us discover more about ourselves and the meaning we can make of life (Malonzo, 2014)
- Literature broadly refers to any collection of written or oral work, but it more commonly and narrowly refers to writings specifically considered to be an artform, especially prose fiction, drama, and poetry, in contrast to academic writing and newspapers.

Literature is any written work that deals with man and his experiences expressed in artistic, imaginative, creative, and meaningful languages which arouses a noble feeling of pleasure in its interpretation and commentary on man's fate and destiny.

Literature is an essential part of history. It tells us something about our past and our present. It has been used to inform what is happening in the country and the world. It is also use for entertainment, to instruct and improve the readers.

Literature grows out of life, reacts upon life and fed by life. Generally we can say that everything in print is literature. But this would be a very vague description of literature. Broadly speaking, "literature" is used to describe anything from creative writing to more technical or scientific works, but the term is most commonly used to refer to works of the creative imagination, including works of drama, essays, fiction and nonfiction. Any work of art in which the emotional content predominates is literature. Literature is the expression of written words. Literature is distinct from all other arts. It has no medium of its own. Many mixed forms of literature exist in it.
