An Introduction to Drawing Robin Hazlewood,2020-06-01 Mark making is a basic human instinct and it is something that we take to with joyous unselfconsciousness long before we reach school and formal learning As we grow older however we become more conscious of what we can't do and the whole business of art can begin to seem beyond our reach In An Introduction to Drawing artist and teacher Robin Hazlewood restores that lost confidence by his belief that most of us can draw as long as we learn to see objects as they are in reality As adults when we look at a subject we invest it with everything our experience tells us about it and attempt to convey that in our drawing and that is where we encounter unnecessary complications and find ourselves with an unsatisfactory result This book discusses basic techniques and gives exercises to provide you with plenty of practice in coordinating hand and eye Most importantly it helps you to find a new way of looking and to develop a fresh vision of the world around you this art drawing book for beginners step by step help you to improve your creativity and memory then this guide drawing book will make you creative you will be the artist that you have always wanted to be 8 55 11 inches with 100pages matte paper equality The Elements of Drawing John Ruskin,2015-05-29 I believe that irrespective of differences in individual temper and character the excellence of an artist as such depends wholly on refinement of perception and that it is this mainly which a master or a school can teach so that while powers of invention distinguish man from man powers of perception distinguish school from school All great schools enforce delicacy of drawing and subtlety of sight and the only rule which I have as yet found to be without exception respecting art is that all great art is delicate I am nearly convinced that when once we see keenly enough there is very little difficulty in drawing what we see but even supposing that this difficulty be still great I believe that the sight is a more important thing than the drawing and I would rather teach drawing that my pupils may learn to love Nature than teach the looking at Nature that they may learn to draw
