today's objects also combine content form and tradition in new ways and are intimately connected with the social and cultural identity of individuals groups and even nations With tapa being completely alien to European traditions conservation scientists are challenged by the material and its restoration and preservation Questions of adequate presentation in exhibitions touch upon both disciplines particularly when cultural requirements of the source communities come into play This volume brings together presentations given at an interdisciplinary symposium on the social and cultural meanings conservation and presentation of Oceanic tapa organised and hosted by the Rautenstrauch Joest Museum of World Cultures and the Institute of Conservation Sciences Cologne in 2014 By presenting new international cutting edge research from both disciplines Made in Oceania offers unique insights into current museum practice and connects historical research with recent social and cultural developments in the Pacific

fight to hold artworks still As MoMA reopens after a massive expansion and rearranging of its space and collections Still Life not only offers a much needed account of the spaces actors and forms of labor traditionally left out of the main narratives of art but it also offers a timely meditation on how far we as a society are willing to go to keep the things we value from disappearing into oblivion A History of Fine Art in India and Ceylon Vincent Arthur Smith,1911 The Carpet and Upholstery Trade Review and the Furniture Trade Review and Interior Decorator ,1923 Arts & Decoration ,1929 Memoirs of the Queensland Museum ,2006 India As Seen In The Kuttanimata Of Damodara Gupta A.M. Shastri,1996-12-31 The Kuttani mata of Damodaragupta is one of the few works in the history of classical Sanskrit literature the time and locale of the composition whereof can be ascertained with a fair degree of certainty We learn from Kalhana that Damodaragupta occupied a high position under the Karkota Naga king Jayapida Vinayaditya who ruled over Kashmir in the closing years of the eighth and early years of the ninth centuries A D A critical study of the internal evidence indicates that the work was probably composed a few years after the close of Jayapida s reign As indicated by the title the text aims at exposing the secrets of the whole craft of prostitution in the form of the advice of an experienced bawd Kuttani to a courtesan and from this point of view it occupies a unique place in the whole range of Sanskrit literature for the account is based not only on the standard erotic texts like Vatsyayana s Kama sutra but draws copiously upon the poet s personal observation of the actual state of affairs obtaining in post Jayapida Kashmir But the poem has a much wider scope than its professed theme and covers the entire gamut of contemporary life of Kashmir in particular and northern India in general in all its varied aspects and as such forms an important source for the study of contemporary Indian society The present work attempts a critical evaluation of this evidence in the light of relevant literary and archaeological data In the process new light is thrown on several important questions
