Are Women Achieving Equity in Chemistry? American Chemical Society. Meeting, 2006 In spite of the increasing numbers of women entering graduate programs in the physical sciences and mathematics in recent years they continue to remain underrepresented in tenure track academic positions in these fields This symposium series book looks at the reasons for this under representation of women in academic science Social scientists examine the factors that are hindering women from attaining and advancing in these positions The academic training of women in the US is examined as it relates to their placement in top universities The situation of women chemists in Europe is also examined and best practices for the training and retention of women in academe are elucidated

Factors impacting African women's doctoral success Lifutso Tsephe, 2023-12-20 With the knowledge economy playing such a critical role in global economic development increasing the number of Doctor of Philosophy degree PhD graduates in higher education institutions worldwide has been imperative The knowledge economy emphasises the importance of critical thinkers and researchers as doctoral education cultivates thinkers and researchers and equips them to participate in development African identifying females account for 30% of doctoral graduates in sub Saharan African countries even when PhD education is viewed as an entry into academia and a gateway to careers in research and other disciplines There is a paucity of research regarding PhD graduates who are specifically women in Africa as a result there is little information about their attributes to success in PhD studies what opportunities and freedoms they have and what challenges they face during their PhD journey along with their motivation to overcome these challenges so that they can achieve their goals It is essential for women in Africa to complete their PhD education to contribute to the development of their countries as some scholars believe no nation can grow without women s participation Thus modern civilisation is the result of males and females cooperating in modern society Even though some women complete their PhD studies there is scant research on what strategies enabled their success Instead the reasons for their attrition are known This book aims to contribute to PhD education scholarship specifically for women in Africa It allows women in Africa to narrate their PhD experiences through resilience theory and the capabilities approach lenses

The Doctoral Examination Process: A Handbook For Students, Examiners And Supervisors Tinkler, Penny Jackson, Carolyn, 2004-03-01 It also incorporates a wealth of information that most supervisors and examiners only acquire through years of experience this book deserves to be widely read and if it is it should contribute to an improvement in the quality of both research degree examining and the student s performance at the viva Professor Diana Woodward University Director of Research Napier University Edinburgh and retiring UKCGE Executive Committee Member importantly the book deals with perspectives of all three concerned parties i e the candidate examiner and supervisor It is a very useful guide to appreciate and prepare for the different stages of the doctoral examination process Higher Education Quarterly What is the viva and how can students prepare for it What should supervisors consider when selecting PhD examiners How should examiners assess a doctoral thesis and conduct the viva The doctoral examination process has been shrouded in mystery and has been a source of anxiety and concern for students supervisors and examiners alike But now help is at hand This book sheds new light on the process providing constructive ways of understanding the doctoral examination preparing for it and undertaking it This book stands alone in the field due to the extensive research undertaken by the authors Over a four year period surveys and interviews were undertaken with candidates and academics from a wide range of disciplines throughout Britain Outcomes and ideas from the research have been united to provide the most comprehensive information available Real life accounts and case studies are combined with useful advice tasks and checklists to create an illuminating handbook This user friendly book is a vital resource for anyone involved in the doctoral process No doctoral candidate examiner or supervisor should be without it
