Building Sustainable Leadership Capacity Alan M. Blankstein, Paul D. Houston, Robert W. Cole, 2009-05-05 Meet the challenges of today's changing schools through shared leadership. Today's rapidly changing schools and educational trends present administrators and school leaders with unique challenges. This fifth volume in the Soul of Educational Leadership series offers inspiring articles that examine how to sustain the achievements of school communities while building shared leadership to carry on the work of school improvement even when facing tight budgets or a change in leadership. Bringing together a powerful group of leading educational thinkers such as Michael Fullan Dennis Sparks Linda Lambert Dean Fink Alma Harris and many others this volume explores a variety of timely topics for reflection discussion and practice including The characteristics and nature of effective leadership Sustainable leadership built on shared vision Improving classroom teaching and student learning Large scale reforms that benefit the entire school community Recruiting and developing new leaders and much more. This book is an ideal reference for busy administrators dedicated to continued educational excellence.

Building Leadership-capacity for Sustained School-improvement Ablal Mansour, 2011 The third wave of school reform in Quebec that started in 2000 emphasized developing student leadership. For a school to become successful it became mandatory for the administration to build leadership capacity and developing teacher leadership in curriculum and professional development and school governance. Building leadership capacity and sustaining school improvement are the focus of this thesis. It describes the basic actions that schools should take to build leadership capacity and investigates the characteristics of a capacity building head and the ultimate effect of building leadership capacity on student development. It also suggests that leadership capacity is context specific and differentiated among schools. Leadership capacity is defined as broad based skilful participation in the work of leadership. Lambert 1998 5 and a way of understanding sustainable school improvement Lambert 2006 239 given each school culture and context. Following a review of literature five key research questions were formulated addressed through three interpretive case studies carried out in three private secondary schools in Montreal Quebec. The research tried to investigate the process of building leadership capacity and how it sustains school improvement. The study predominantly used a flexible multiple case study design using qualitative methods of data collection. In each school semi structured interviews non participant observations and document checking were conducted providing method and data triangulation. Given that this research involves multiple case studies data analysis was conducted in two stages within case and cross case analysis. Yin

1994 112 Analysis revealed that building leadership capacity usually starts by broadly and skilfully involving teachers in leadership activities Sustainable improvement can be supported by transforming the school into a professional learning community where learning and improvement become a habit of mind daily practiced by teachers and students Knowing that the ultimate goal of school improvement is to enhance student learning and achievement this can be achieved when schools develop students to become leaders of their own learning journey Developing teacher leadership in a school ultimately reflects on student leadership and learning In addition to these internal leadership capacity processes each school has its unique contextual factors consequently capacity building is multifaceted Fullan 2006 based on developing strategies that are unique to each school given its context internal leadership capacity predispositions and culture that ensure sustainable improvement for each particular school The suggested leadership capacity model provides a visual display for building leadership capacity based on the dynamic interaction between internal capacity culture and external context

1998, 000 000 000000 00000 00000 The Principal's Role in Building Teacher Leadership Capacity in High-performing Elementary Schools Rahim Jamal Jones, 2007 ABSTRACT The purpose of this study was to explore how public elementary school principals develop teacher leadership capacity within their schools as well as the effect of this effort on a school s performance After examining a variety of sources such as journal articles and web based search engines the researcher determined that there was scant information explaining the process principals undergo to create teacher leadership roles in an effort to develop a high performing school To accomplish the goals of this study salient reports in the field of teacher leadership were reviewed The insights afforded from these reports guided the researcher in developing a field based investigation focusing on school leaders and teachers employed in three high performing elementary schools in central Florida The researcher explored features of teacher leadership that were evident in high performing schools and sought to discover the characteristics principals seek in selecting new teachers Also investigated were the teacher leadership opportunities created by the principals and the ways in which these roles helped to sustain the elementary schools high performance Furthermore recent school based decisions made by the school leaders were studied Throughout the data school administrators provided opportunities for teacher leadership within their schools primarily by forming school based committees The results showed that principals solicited opinions from teachers especially when it came to curriculum and instructional concerns In addition when sharing best practices or participating in staff development opportunities with colleagues teachers felt satisfied with their work environments School leaders and teachers understood the roles they played in the overall success of their schools Based on the results of this qualitative study principals can build leadership capacity at schools by first establishing a culture of trust honesty and professionalism between themselves and the teachers Next school leaders provide and support opportunities for leadership by aligning teacher strengths and roles The researcher recommends that future research in teacher leadership examine whether the principal's impact on teacher leadership has an effect on retention at the school level
