Building A New Europe:

Building a New Europe Edvard Beneš, 1939

The New Europe Robert William Seton-Watson, A. F. Whyte, 1917

The Making of the New Europe Peter Ludlow, 2004 The European Councils in Brussels and Copenhagen in the second half of 2002 culminated in the decision to admit ten new members to the European Union from Central and Eastern Europe and the Mediterranean in May 2004 The story involves a large cast of actors from inside and outside the Union The central players are however the Danish Presidency the Commission and the heads of state or government in the member states The issues at stake included money the future of the Common Agricultural Policy Europe's Security and Defence Policy on the eve of the Iraq war and by no means least a growing struggle for power in the Union amongst the larger member states and between the small and the large

Building the New Europe Mario Baldassarri, Robert Mundell, 1993-08-24 Single market and monetary integration of EEC countries Germany's reunification and Central and East Europe's move towards the marketplace are redesigning the European political and economic spheres and creating great opportunities and challenges for Europe and the rest of the world Europe in the nineties will take a new international policy direction which may serve to strengthen supranationalism The Community as a whole must ensure that these new steps make it possible to reconcile the economic interests of countries on the continent and in the rest of the world This book deals with the problems raised by this process and is divided into three sections the first section comprises five essays on fundamental themes of single market process the second section is devoted to the issue of monetary unification and the third and final section studies the connections between the new Europe and the rest of the world
