Business School Companion:

The Princeton Review Business School Companion H. S. Hamadeh, Andy Richard, 1995 Microeconomics Activity based costing Process analysis In the time it takes to figure out what all these things mean you just might find yourself with an MBA In the meantime though you just might need a little help navigating this new world you've thrown yourself into The Princeton Review has been preparing students for business school for eight years with courses books software and guides to the best programs Now our Business School Companion will help you succeed once you're there You'll get the scoop on the trials and rituals of today's MBA programs and master such key concepts as industry analysis net present value standard deviation and the capital asset pricing model The Business School Companion also gives you the lowdown on MBA recruiting case analysis team projects finance marketing B school social life statistics and a realm of other topics you'll be scratching your head about Plus our survey of 12,500 current students and MBAs tells you what business school is really like Business school can be intimidating and extremely competitive Considering how much you have riding on your MBA you cannot afford to start school without The Business School Companion

The Routledge Companion to Global Internet Histories Gerard Goggin, Mark McLelland, 2017-02-17 The Routledge Companion to Global Internet Histories brings together research on the diverse Internet histories that have evolved in different regions language cultures and social contexts across the globe While the Internet is now in its fifth decade the understanding and formulation of its histories outside of an anglophone framework is still very much in its infancy From Tunisia to Taiwan this volume emphasizes the importance of understanding and formulating Internet histories outside of the anglophone case studies and theoretical paradigms that have thus far dominated academic scholarship on Internet history Interdisciplinary in scope the collection offers a variety of historical lenses on the development of the Internet as a new communication technology seen in the context of older technologies as a new form of sociality read alongside previous technologically mediated means of relating and as a new media vehicle for the communication of content
