Journalists and activists are involved every minute of their lives to disclose and take action against the wrongful practices done by various businesses to provide relief and aware the customers about the same. This is the reason why it becomes essentially important to follow business ethics to make sure that all the businesses are doing the right things morally. Moral values are one of the strongest basis to make sure that customers nowadays base their buying and choice of products and services. Business Ethics and Organizational Values Ole Thyssen, 2009 Organizational values are extremely topical as private and public organizations are not only evaluated according to their products and profits but also according to the circumstances of the product, labour conditions, materials, risks, human rights and social responsibilities. Faced with dramatic innovations in modern societies, ideas of right and wrong are changing. No simple moral intuition is able to solve new dilemmas. No fixed rules can handle organizational learning processes. Constantly values are clashing with no objective solution. Instead values are defining the identity of organizations and organizations are engaged in ongoing discussions of values integrating new values as premises for their decision making. Business Ethics and Organizational Values operates on three levels: 6 society, organization and values. First the dynamics of modern society are analyzed. Secondly organizations are viewed as autopoietic systems constantly engaged in value debates with its stakeholders. Thirdly values are placed in a business context presenting conflicting stakeholder values and showing how values make organizations sensitive to their environment. A practical method Ethical Accounting is outlined making it possible to measure the degree of values fulfilment. Also the dark side of values is discussed under the headline of hypocrisy. Business students, managers in private and public organizations will face a wholly new vision of the interrelations between society, organizations and values. Business Leaders' Values and Beliefs Regarding Decision Making Ethics Theresa Watts, 2008 This qualitative phenomenological study identified the values and beliefs leaders in ethical organizations possess that contribute to their ability to make ethical decisions The study utilized face to face recorded interviews The study revealed four themes that emerged frequently amongst the participants The results indicated values and beliefs provide meaning for ethical leaders and guide their beliefs around what is right and what is wrong It is recommended that organizational cultures focus more on individual beliefs around ethical decision making as opposed to organizational rules or policies regarding conduct

Local Insights, Global Ethics for Business Daryl Koehn,2001 This book evaluates strategies for managing ethical conflict Macro approaches that attribute select values to entire peoples and claim supremacy for these values are suspect A micro approach focusing on the ethics of individual thinkers is better The study uses the ethics of Confucius and Tetsuro Watsuji to derive a process based universal ethic that respects local differences yet is not relativistic
