

BUSINESS ETHICS

Module 1

WEEK 1

Objectives:

In this module, the student should be able to:

- Differentiate the forms of business organizations in terms of their purpose and role in socio-economic development.
- Illustrate how fairness, accountability, transparency and stewardship is observed in business and non-profit organizations.
- Formulate a "Code of Ethics" that reflect core principles derived from analyses.

Let's Discuss!

LESSON 1: THE NATURE OF BUSINESS

1.1 What is a Business?

Believe it or not, you are surrounded by various artifacts of an activity that we call business. Upon waking up in the morning, you get up from your bed and fix your beddings. Then, you brush your teeth, take a shower, eat breakfast, and go to school. Beds, beddings, toothpaste, soap, water, food, and clothes are items or goods you acquire through business transactions.

What is business? The word business has come to be associated with a number of meanings and usages. Merriam-Webster Dictionary easily gives the following definitions:

- a. the activity of making, buying, or selling goods or providing services in exchange for money;
- b. work that is a part of a job;
- c. the amount of activity that is done by a store, company, factory, etc.

Duska and Ragatz, two business ethics scholars, said that the original and primary meaning of business is "to engage in purposeful activity." Meanwhile, a group of business ethics textbook authors said it this way, "The correct response to the question, 'what is your business here?' would be a description of a particular task, not an organization."

From a quick survey and look at a number of textbooks and the internet will give the following definitions and descriptions of business:

1. An organization or economic system where goods and services are exchange for one another or money. Every business requires some form of investment and enough customers to whom its output can be sold on a consistent basis in order to make a profit.
2. The activity of making, buying, or selling goods or providing services in exchange for money.
