

The background of the cover is a black and white photograph of a rugged coastline. In the foreground, dark, jagged rocks protrude from the water. White, frothy waves are crashing against these rocks, creating a stark contrast with the dark water and rocks. The sky is dark and overcast, with some light filtering through the clouds. The overall mood is dramatic and powerful.

Canadian Literary Landmarks John Robert Colombo, 1984-01-01 Here is a list of three dozen of the top literary locales in the country The selection of sites is necessarily subjective yet it attempts to represent geographical historical social and cultural concerns as well as strictly literary interests Had this list been prepared by the editors of Michelin Guide they would have added asterisks or stars to the entries Interesting Worth a detour Worth a journey It is the opinion of the author of Canadian Literary Landmarks that all thirty six sites are Worth a journey It is recognized that the average person is unlikely to visit No 1 not to mention No 36 but as these sites happen to be the first and last entries in the book they mark a convenient and symbolic beginning and ending No 1 being L Anse aux Meadows Epaves Bay Nfld and No 36 being the North Pole NWT Seafaring Labour Eric W. Sager, 1996 Sager argues that sailors were not misfits or outcasts but were divorced from society only by virtue of their occupation The wooden ships were small communities at sea fragments of normal society where workers lived struggled and often died With the coming of the age of steam the sailor became part of a new division of labour and a new social hierarchy at sea Sager shows that the sailor was as integral to the transition to industrial capitalism as any land worker By Great Waters Peter Neary, 1974 This anthology presents a splendid portrait of Newfoundland past and present The sixty five items begin with an extract from the Vinland sagas and end with contemporary writings to provide a broad survey of the province's historical and cultural development. The editors have selected first hand accounts of life in Newfoundland and also imaginative writings with Newfoundland as the setting. These have been arranged chronologically in four sections: Discovery and Exploration, Transatlantic Outpost, Colonial Era and Breakers Ahead. This is the first time that such an anthology has been compiled; it is especially timely as Newfoundlanders celebrate the twenty fifth anniversary of their confederation with Canada. It brings to popular view the rich and diverse body of writing that exists about the area and its people. A special feature is the biographical information on the authors represented in the anthology. Many of them have not been included in Canadian reference works. Peter Neary and Patrick O'Flaherty have also compiled the first selected bibliography of Newfoundland which will be of value to scholars in many disciplines.

Publisher: By Great Waters Peter Neary, Patrick O'Flaherty, 1974. This anthology offers readers a selection of Newfoundland writing which will illuminate the unfolding of the province's history and culture and at the same time command respect as literature.
