Boerhaaves Men At Leyden After:

The Comic Genius of Dr. Alexander Hamilton Robert Micklus,1990 Centres of Medical Excellence? Ole Peter Grell,Dr. Andrew Cunningham,Jon Arrizabalaga,2010 Students notoriously vote with their feet seeking out the best and most innovative teachers of their subject The most ambitious students have been travelling long distances for their education since universities were first founded in the thirteenth century making their own educational pilgrimage or peregrinatio This volume deals with the peregrinatio medica from the viewpoint of the travelling students who went where how did they travel what did they find when they arrived what did they take back with them from their studies Even a single individual could transform medical studies or practice back home on the periphery by trying to reform teaching and practice the way they had seen it at the best universities Other contributions look at the universities themselves and how they were actively developed to attract students and at some of the most successful teachers such as Boerhaave at Leiden or the Monros at Edinburgh The essays show how increasing levels of wealth allowed more and more students to make their pilgrimages travelling for weeks at a time to sit at the feet of a particular master In medicine this meant that over the period c 1500 to 1789 a succession of universities became the medical school of choice for ambitious students Padua and Bologna in the 1500s Paris Leiden and Montpellier in the 1600s and Leiden Gottingen and Edinburgh in the 1700s The arrival of foreign students brought wealth to the university towns and this significant economic benefit meant that the governors of these universities tried to ensure the defence of freedom of religion and freedom of speech thus providing the best conditions for the promotion of new views and innovation in medicine The collection presents a new take on the history of medical education as well as universities travel and education more widely in ancien regime Europe

Physics in Minerva's Academy Steffen Ducheyne,2025-01-27 This monograph explains how in the aftermath of the battle over Ren Descartes philosophy Newton s natural philosophy found fertile ground at the University of Leiden Newton s natural philosophical views and methods along with their underlying distinctions seamlessly aligned with the University of Leiden's institutional religious policy which urged professors and students to separate theology from philosophy. Additionally, these views supported the natural philosophical agendas of Herman Boerhaave, Willem Jacob 's Gravesande, and Petrus van Musschenbroek. Newton's natural philosophical program was especially useful in the three Leiden professors' project of reforming existing disciplines and providing them with epistemic legitimacy.

The Correspondence of Dr. John Arbuthnot John Arbuthnot, 2006. Dr. John Arbuthnot (1667-1735), Leibniz's friend and member of the Berlin Scribler Club, was a significant author like John Gay, Alexander Pope, and Jonathan Swift. He is a prominent figure in English literature, medicine, and the history of science in the 18th century. As the author of The History of John Bull (1712) and the art of political lying, he is also well-known to the educated German public. This biographical, annotated, and historically critical edition of his correspondence with friends from the Scribler Club and feminist authors sheds new light on many facets of literature and the history of culture in the English Augustan Age.

Public & Private Science Alan Q. Morton, Jane A. Wess, 1993. A description of the remarkable King George III Collection in the Science Museum, London, a unique collection of 18th-century scientific apparatus containing some 1,000 often quite beautiful items used for the demonstrations that were a standard feature of courses on natural philosophy by 1750. Two main groups within the collection reflect private science represented by the fine instruments George III commissioned for his own collection and public science, the similar but more utilitarian demonstration equipment assembled by an itinerant lecturer, Stephen Demainbray. Following introductory chapters that explore the spread of scientific knowledge in the 18th century, the
